Ol' Case Burns 'Nice Guy' Bauer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14 (P)—"I'd like to show one guy I still can play ball."

Hank Bauer didn't say who the "one guy" was but it was obvious he meant Casey Stengel, his old New York Yankee boss who traded him to Kansas City during the winter.

Bauer grinned in the clubhouse at Connie Mack Field. "I'm not going to blast anybody," he said. "Remember, I won the nice guy award."

Hank referred to the award received from the New York Baseball Writers. He was the first winner of the new award. "Guess I won't know how to act the first time we play the Yankees. I'll play just as hard against them as I did for them. That Yogi (Berra) probably will barber me all day long."

Meanwhile, Roy Face, the mighty mite relief hurler who posted an 18-1 record with Pittsburgh last year, says he'll give a repeat performance "if I get the breaks and my arm holds up."

Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles declares "strikeouts are too much work." He's the league's leader.

... The Phillies report Coach Andy Cohen, before Saturday's home exhibition, said jokingly that "anyone pulling a rock gets fined $25." ... The Phils wore gray instead of the white home uniform. ... Boston Coach Del Baker said Earl Wilson "has the greatest potential of our younger pitchers, except Bill Monbouquette."
