

Andy Cohen is an old deceiver

On the surface Andy Cohen is as chippy as ever. Beneath the Pagliacci mask Andy is most unhappy. He still has hope, stoutly proclaiming the Pels could come out of the cellar all the way to the first division for some improved pitching.

"We haven't had too much luck," says Andy. "We've some good players, and they try hard to win. A few breaks and we could get moving."

This dragging the bottom is new stuff for Andy—a far cry from the years he was making a baseball capital out of Denver with clubs that had the pitching and played heads-up baseball.

Left to Eddie Glennon, there would be no scheduled double-headers except on holidays. And a rule against making any double-headers for Saturday nights.

Glennon's policy of scheduling as few double-headers as possible has helped the Barons' pitching. If pitching rotations can be kept in order, a club has less chance of running into long, losing streaks.

Fans today don't go for the double-header bargains like they once did. They are now satisfied with seeing one game.

Rickwood should have a greener playing field with a new watering system being installed. When finished, one turn of a faucet and the whole field can be flooded.

Roebuck is calling all youngsters interested in playing golf free. The Roebuck Golf Club's youth programs begins Friday, June 22, at 4 o'clock. And on Tuesdays and Fridays through July the course will be open.

There will be clinics, free clubs and balls furnished.

Never a finer chance to see that your boys and girls learn and enjoy a game they can play through life.
