

Miners Drop Twin Bill To Devils

University of Texas at El Paso, in the midst of a prolonged eight-game losing skein, dropped a pair of conference baseball games to Arizona State 6-4 and 12-1 Saturday at Dudley Field.

The Miners, under Coach Andy Cohen, have lost 12 of their last 14 games. U.T. El Paso is now saddled with a 10-27 record and a 0-6 Southern Division of Western Athletic Conference mark.

Arizona State is currently ranked No.2 in the nation with a 40-3 slate and a spotless 6-0 conference record.

With the score tied at 4-4 in the ninth inning of the opener, ASU got two men on base with two out. Miner Shortstop Ernie Hernandez allowed a ground ball to leak into leftfield as the winning runs romped home.

In the nightcap, Miner starting pitcher Phil Darwin lasted only one-third of an inning as the Sun Devils erupted for four tallies in the first frame.

Al Bannister, of ASU, paced the Devils with a four for six batting performance. Teammate Rick Glazebrook drove in five runs in the nightcap.

Barry Alburtis, the Miners' steady lefthander hitter, went three for six to pace the losers' attack.

Coach Cohen's charges will host the University of New Mexico next Friday and Saturday in a three-game set.
