

Maturing Sun Kings Open 1968 Season

On the assumption that youth improves with maturity, the El Paso Sun Kings have drawn a young but more mature team for the 1968 Texas League pennant race than the club which finished third in a battling finish last season.

Nine members of Chuck Tanner's squad which opened the 1968 season Tuesday night in Albuquerque, and which will offer the home fans the first look in their Dudley Field home opener Thursday night, were with the team last year. Four others on the roster have been with the Kings in previous campaigns.

Tanner himself is in a similar position—he returns to the El Paso helm after a year's absence with the Seattle Angels of the Pacific Coast League. Previously he guided Sun King teams in 1965 and 1966.

Average age of the 1968 roster is 23 years, but the average age of the lineup which Tanner started against the Albuquerque Dodgers Tuesday night was just over 21.

Adding to the more mature look of the Sun Kings is a new front office staff, with Fred Herschler stepping up from business manager to take over the reins as general manager.

Herschler replaces John Stanfill, who departed to cast his fortunes in the field of computerized ticket sales.

Dick Miller, who did the play-by-play broadcast of the Sun King games last year, moves up to become business manager for the 1968 season, but will continue to be the air voice of the Sun Kings. Each game of the 1968 schedule will be broadcast over KROD.

The California Angels, in the second year of full ownership of the El Paso franchise, have followed a pattern of good pitching which was established with the 1967 team. Quality of pitching is given much of the credit for last season's third-place finish.

The 16-man mound corps lists three left-handers in relief expert Bill Boehert from the 1967 squad, Jon Lervig from Quad Cities and Rudy May, en route back to the majors from San Jose.

The infield includes three of last year's club in Jim Spencer at first, Gordon Avery at second and Jim DeNeff at third. Experience is on hand in 26-year-old Bill Bethea, former University of Texas great. Marty Perez has been given the starting nod at shortstop. Bruce Davis, another utility infielder, is the
