Chapman, Trojans To 'Star' In Film

By MIKE KELLY

National collegiate baseball champions, Chapman College and the University of Southern California, will co-star in a feature length motion picture on training techniques to be filmed at Dodger Stadium on Saturday, Jan. 4 as part of the NCAA baseball coaches' convention in Los Angeles.

Showcasing practice routines and game techniques which developed championship-caliber baseball teams, the film will emphasize team defense (by USC) and offensive and defensive performance drills (by Chapman). Each segment will last one hour and 15 minutes.

"We consider this a real honor to our team and a boost to our baseball program at Chapman," coach Paul Deese said today.

Deese, a leading candidate for "coach of the year" on the college level, guided Chapman's inexperienced and untested Panthers to the NCAA College Division championship last season. Rod Dedeaux, the top nominee for the same honor in university class, led Southern California's Trojans to the NCAA University Division baseball title.

The convention will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 3 at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles. Four lectures will be presented to the attending coaches, the first on double plays by Bobby Wren of Ohio U., to be followed with base-running techniques by Jack Stallings of Wake Forest, hitting faults by Leon Landie of Wayne State and defensive strategy by Andy Cohen of the University of Texas at El Paso.

Film footage will be taken at 9:15 a.m. Saturday with USC's portion, followed by Chapman's segment which will be shot from 10:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

After the motion picture has been completed, the clinic will continue with a discussion on scientific hitting by Dodger coach Jim Gilliam. California Angel manager Bill Rigney will conduct a one-hour lecture on offensive strategy, followed by a one-hour conference on pitching fundamentals by Don Drysdale.

Saturday's schedule will be completed with a study on double plays under the direction of Angel shortstop Jim Fregosi and second baseman Bobby Knoop.

As the convention reconvenes at the Biltmore on Sunday, the program will include a lecture on scouting by Dodger executive Al Campanis and a discussion on umpiring by Emmett Ashford of the American League.

High school and college coaches in the area in the area are urged to attend the convention.
