

Baseballers Follow Grid, Cage Success

After a national champion in basketball and a Sun Bowl victory in football, one would think that there just isn't any way to have another winner at Texas Western this year. But lo and behold, the Miner baseballers have jumped off to their best year in the school's history.

The Miners opened the season with a four game sweep over the College of Albuquerque and took three of four from New Mexico Highlands to run their season record to seven victories and one defeat.

The Miners will play the University of Denver Wednesday and Thursday at Dudley Field with both encounters scheduled for 2 p.m.

Miner Coach Andy Cohen is hopeful that Bill Sanders will be ready to go in on one of the games during the two game set. Sanders is recovering from the flu and had to miss the series with Highlands. Sanders pitched a four-hit shutout in the opening game of the season for TWC.

Tom Jennings pushed his record to 2-0 for the 1966 season with a victory over Highlands last Friday and should be a starter in one of the games against Denver this week.

Denver arrives in El Paso following their 9-8 victory over the University of New Mexico on Saturday of last week.
