

Coker, Herrera Pay Respects

CATCHER JIM COKER and First Baseman Frank Herrera, former Marlins, wanted to know about things back in Miami. They liked the town and asked to be remembered to General Manager Joe Ryan, Bill Durney and Sonny Hirsch, joint radio voices of the Marlin.

Coker started off as the Phillies' first catcher, but rivals, particularly the Giants, stole too many bases on him. Mauch thinks Coker needs only experience.

"I can recall three games that Jim's bat won for us," said Mauch. "He'll see a lot of service."

Frank's Happy at 1st Base

HERRERA PLAYED SECOND base until Ed Bouchée was traded to Chicago. Now he's happy at his old first base position.

"I got to like it at second," said the big Cuban. "Andy (Coach Cohen) helped a lot giving me pointers. I just like to play."

Herrera said he has quit trying to pull the ball because it hampered him in batting.

"Now I just hit straight away and hope the ball falls safe," said Herrera.
