

didn't like it, maybe I didn't think there was much basketball finesse. But maybe times have changed. Maybe this racehorse, run-and-shoot scramble is what people like. Maybe it's the thing today — so to speak.

"Look at it this way. Would it really be in good taste to have all these happy people get up in the morning and read that all this happiness was brought about by what a reporter says was a lousily-played basketball game? Sure, I have the prerogative to say so because I'm looked upon as a critic.

"But think about it."

The buff didn't answer. He put on his hat and weaved his way through the happily-chanting "We're No. 1, We're No. 1," mob to the door.

SOMEONE ASKED me my reaction to the news that Elmira stands in good position to have a Class D (oops Class A) baseball team in the NY-P League in 1973. I think an NY-P operation, run and promoted right, would make money. I like the short season (30 home games) and I doubt if any class of baseball could give us poorer professional baseball players than the Cleveland Indians provided in 1972. But when I remember the difference between our last Class D clubs and those great Baltimore teams and our 1971 champs from the KC Royals organization, a return to Class D (and now it's really only rookie league play) isn't all that exciting — to me personally . . . Andy Cohen, one-time Elmira resident, former major league baseballer and a member of Elmira's Baseball Hall of Fame, was a recent visitor. Andy, slowly recuperating from serious illness, looks great and says he's on the way back. He recently attended the NCAA baseball coaches condrence in Chicago. Andy, who now lives in El Paso, Tex., is baseball coach at Texas El Paso and a key member of the El Paso professional baseball operation.

Bob Foster, the lighthheavy champ, who'll make his first Elmira visit for the Feb. 5 All-Sports show, is considered to be among the best boxing banquet personalties in the business. Bob has made a full-length TV show, has done (and will do Monday's Frazier-Foreman fight) boxing color, is a law man in Arizona and is the first boxer ever to appear at an All-Sports fete during his active championship days . . . The Twin Tiers Golf Championship, co-sponsored by Elmira College and The Star-Gazette, figures to fill its 176 maximum field within a couple of weeks after entries open the first week in May. It looms as among the finest golf tourneys ever scheduled in the Twin Tiers. . . . Are you ready for my fight pick? Well, I like both Joe Frazier and George Foreman. They're wholesome, fine gentlemen. But I like Frazier as a fighter better.
