

ASU outlasts Miners

By JAY COLEMAN

TEMPE — Texas-El Paso coach Andy Cohen may be an "old dog" in the coaching ranks of the Western Athletic Conference, but Saturday afternoon he and his Niners refused to play dead.

When Arizona St. took a 9-2 lead after six innings, UTEP came to life in the seventh inning for five runs and made a game out of what started out to be an all too-familiar ASU rout.

But senior reliever Dale Hrovat came on in the seventh to pitch the Devils out of trouble and A-State went on to take the first game of a Southern Division doubleheader, 11-8.

The teams met again Saturday night in the finale.

"It wasn't as bad as it looked," ASU coach Jim Brock said. "We had a couple of defensive lapses and weren't stinging the ball well, but overall it was a pretty good effort."

An open house displaying the new Arizona State Activity Center will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend the event which will be preceded by a short dedication ceremony and feature a tour of the new $9-million facility.

but stranded 11 including three in the sixth when starting pitcher Jim Umbarger fanned the last two batters.

"UTEP swings the bat well, you got to accept that fact," Brock said. "They hit often and sharply and most of the balls were between people, up against the fence or over the fence."

The only "over the fence" hit came in the top of the ninth when Miner catcher Jim Brundage ricocheted a Hrovat pitch off the leftfield scoreboard to bring UTEP to within three (11-8), but Hrovat, the third ASU pitcher, struck out the final two batters.
