ONE OF the best records to date belongs to Jimmy O'Toole. The 23-year-old Cincinnati lefthander is now 3-2, and with a few breaks along the line could be 6-0.

O'Toole's success this year is due to control, intelligence and a fast slider. Pitching winter ball helped Jimmy. He knows how to pitch, where to pitch, and unlike last season, every ball is delivered with a purpose.

Young Hook is another pitcher of the same type. Like O'Toole, he's an intelligent chap. A good competitor, with great stuff. They could very easily give the Reds the one-two pitching punch they have been seeking since the pennant-winning days of Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters.
