"Finalize."

That was the key word used by Lynn Stone of the Milwaukee Braves organization in describing his meeting with Fairgrounds officials today.

Stone and Milwaukee secretary-assistant treasurer Frank Leary returned from Milwaukee yesterday and will confer with Fairgrounds Comptroller Charles Atkinson this morning.

"We hope then to finalize certain things that we already have discussed in a general way," Stone explained.

Leary is here to make the formal signing of the contract which would put the official touch to the switch of the Wichita franchise to Louisville.

Stone said that the Braves were quite pleased with the welcome Louisville has given them. Milwaukee executive vice-president Birdie Tebbetts has received numerous wires, letters and telephone calls from Louisville fans indicating their enthusiasm.

Today's session is primarily concerned with the lease of the Stadium. It is understood that Governor Chandler promised Stone that the rental terms would be the same as for the "old" Colonels. They paid 7½ per cent of the gross or a minimum of $7,500.

The Downtown Kiwanis Club also is keeping a watchful eye on the dates allotted to the baseball club, a Kiwanis spokesman said yesterday. The Kiwanians annually sponsor a pro football exhibition during early September that might conflict with baseball playoff dates.

While the Louisville situation in the American Association seems to have been settled, Omaha attempted to ease the jitters over whether the Cardinals will play in the league next year.

"We're setting up to do business here," general manager Bill Bergesch said in a news conference called at Omaha.

Andy Cohen, who was fired by Denver after the Bears finished fourth in the A.A. this season, is hanging up his spikes for keeps, he says.

The one-time New York Giants second baseman said he's going to sell beer in El Paso, Texas.

Cohen, 53, is an alumnus of University of Alabama. The twisting trails of baseball took him to Waco, Tex., and Buffalo, then to New York as an infielder for John McGraw.

He wound up at Minneapolis in the Association in 1932 and stayed there for nine seasons.
