Baton Fumbling

ALL POINTS BULLETINS. Now we know what happens to players on the UCLA football team who fumble. They join the Bruins track team where they drop the baton in sprint relay races. The baton is a small piece of wood about a foot long. It's easily grasped but UCLA makes a habit of dropping it. They have dropped it four times this season and were disqualified. Mexican Revolution is the name of a team and were disqualified. ball League. What they're doing now: Bobby Harmon, a perennial jockey standout at Sunland Park, had the most wins, 10, of any rider at Santa Fe Downs prior to this week's program started. Signs of progress: The National Football League will now count ties as a half games won and half games lost. Heretofore ties have been ignored in the standings. Now it's ascertained that Bee Bee Bee, the Preakness winner, won't run run run in the Belmont Stakes. Albuquerque appeared to be in a big hurry to get Jeff Zahn from the Sun Dodgers but hasn't appeared to be in a hurry to pitch him. He's due to pitch for the Dukes tonight, a week after joining the team. Mary Huana, attending a baseball game, kept wondering when they were going to have the halftime show. Those Indianapolis cars are racing billboards. Sunco . . . STP . . . Diehard . . . Avery Brundage, who wouldn't let ski jumpers put trade names on their skis, could really do a job at the Indy. And did you hear about the baseball player who said he was a better homerun hitter than Ruth? Ruth was the name of his sister. (From Jim Murray's column in Los Angeles Times).

Optimism Champ

IF ED SPARLING was the sole survivor of Custer's troops at the Little Big Horn massacre, he would have smiled and said, "we'll wallop 'em in a rematch." He's one of the most optimistic coaches in the business. According to his boss a UTTEP, Don Haskins, Ed was an excellent office man in keeping records, filling out reports, and doing other desk jobs. We will miss his, "Hi Babe," salutation. Dave Price's departure from the Western Athletic Conference for greener pastures in the Pacific Eight will be regretted by all the sportswriters and sports information directors throughout our conference. He's a mighty mite. Having seen Del Crandall operate as manager of the Albuquerque Dodgers in the Texas League I'll predict he'll have success at Milwaukee as the manager of the Brewers. He's the Chuck Tanner type in personality and drive. Andy Cohen has been on the move since the UTEP baseball season closed. He's been at Santa Fe and Lubbock recruiting. Hopefully he will get enough players to pull the Miners out of the doormat class in WAC competition. Duffy Daugherty, the Michigan State football coach, was a ball. It weighs only 13 ounces." guard in college ball. "Heck," he said, "anyone can carry a foot-

Ex-Sun Kings

FIVE PLAYERS of the Shreveport team in the Texas League are former El Paso Sur Kings. They are: catcher Randy Niles, pitcher Antonio Barbosa, catcher Greg Dehn, outfielder John Doherty and catcher Larry Henson. Arizona State has completed its "Pride in a Stride" campaign to finance a tartan surface for its track. The goal of $159,000 was reached. Where did bowlers get the name of keggers? Handle at Ruidoso Downs this year is up a remarkable 17.5 over last year. Whatever happened to the Three I League? Don Maynard is playing in the Jimmy Durante-Dale Robertson Golf Classic in Albuquerque on June 10-11. Week's astute salute to Fred DeBernardi for winning the NCAA shot put championship at Eugene, Ore. That brings up this point. Good college baseball, football, basketball, golf and tennis players (and even wrestlers) have opportunities to cash in on their abilities as professionals after finishing college. Track and field athletes, even though they may become famous in school, don't have much to look forward to in a remunerative way. There's no financial future in this sport. It doesn't seem fair.

WEEK'S POEM

Many don't get the chance,
So for the athletic bloke
He shouldn't be chastised
If he happens to choke.
