

SPRING
A little cooler tonight, tomorrow partly cloudy and mild, high tomorrow 70.
Details on Page 7.

89th YEAR

MEIrose 8-2411

TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 15, 1958

30 PAGES 7 CENTS

Russ May Win Race to Moon, Von Braun Says

By ARTHUR KRANISH
INS Reporter

WASHINGTON—Army missile expert Wernher von Braun said today the U.S. will attempt to hit the moon with a rocket "as fast as we can," but it may take many months and the Russians may do it first.

The German-born rocket scientist opened a congressional hearing on outer space problems with a blunt warning that the Soviets are "seriously" ahead of the U.S. in long-range rockets and space ventures.

"I have doubts," von Braun declared, "as to whether we are doing it adequate."

Von Braun said his rocket team has run out of Jupiter missiles for use in developing the space program in 1959.

He added that "what we had needed and quick" is a rocket sled now for more guidance systems and other hardware used in building the missiles.

The developer of the U.S. Explorer satellite declared he is "convinced" the Russians are now planning "something spectacular" in space to compensate for the loss of their two huge Sputniks, which are no longer in orbit.

Von Braun said that the Pentagon gave the Army missile agency the green light for a "shot at the moon" only a few weeks ago and "we will try it as soon as we have the capability."

However, the technical director of Army missile efforts said it would "involve many months" of work after he hit the moon with a rocket or send a rocket near the moon.

WARNS RUSS HAVE EDGE

On a longer-range basis, the witness declared that the Pentagon approved the army, within two to three years, could put a man into space and return him safely.

Within five years, he said, it could launch a man-carrying satellite with "limited military capability."

Von Braun told the House committee that the U.S. now has a "well-planned and well-conceived" space program in competent hands but that the Russians still have the edge.

The first step in meeting this challenge, von Braun declared, must be to "discontinue our unfortunate practice of supporting only such research and development that serves immediate military objectives."

Von Braun, in his prepared statement, said that the U.S. should have a program to overlap of programs and to install a bit of competition between (research) teams.

Up for committee action is President Eisenhower's plan to create a civilian agency to handle space matters. The agency would be formed around the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which now does basic aeronautics research.

Mullin Yells 'Dirty Pool' at Defender of Bayt

By BILL WILDHACK

Democratic County Chairman Owen M. Mullin cord "four" last night when a Northern Democratic Club speaker spoke in defense of Mayor Philip L. Bayt.

Mullin's ire was directed at James E. Noland, former Seventh District congressman and now an Indianapolis attorney. Bayt, the county chairman's real foe for the party's prosecutor nomination, did not attend the discussion session in the Indiana University building at the fairgrounds because of a commitment to speak at a dinner for the Indianapolis Indians.

The dispute was touched off when Mrs. Gordon McCalmont, one of four panelists, asked Mullin to explain why "four" last night when a Northern Democratic Club speaker spoke in defense of Mayor Philip L. Bayt.

Mullin replied that Bayt is not qualified to be mayor, while Bayt (Mullin) has been engaged in the law business for years. He said he knows practicing lawyers would object to Bayt taking over the prosecutor's office.

Noland immediately jumped into the discussion on Bayt's behalf. He said that as a former assistant city attorney, he has discussed legal problems with the Mayor and knows he is well-versed in the law. He said Bayt is a former Municipal Court judge and asserted he "is doing a good job of law enforcement."

Mullin then lodged a complaint about Noland speaking on behalf of Bayt. He said Noland was going to repeat Bayt at the meeting, he should have given an opening speech, as did other candidates for Republican nomination, questioning, Mullin said.

This view was maintained by the Rev. Jack Mendelsohn, pastor of All Souls Unitarian church, who said Bayt is a "dirty pool" and that he was elected prosecutor, he would finish the four-year term.

Herman Haglebogle Says:

Mrs. Erwin Permer, 5390 Grandview, tells me she has never found the country very cooperative on chicken problems in her neighborhood. West 38th east and west of Grandview is a mass of chickens.

But that way for two years, she says. She says she's been calling the county for more than a year, but nothing has been done about the rood.

B47 Blows Up Over Skyway

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—A B47 from MacDill Air Force Base exploded in the air today in an electrical storm and barely missed crashing into Sunshine Skyway in Tampa Bay.

Wreckage from the bomber was scattered over the bridge. A plane engine was seen the main span, connecting St. Petersburg and Palmetto.

Helicopters worn by Air Force flyers were scattered along the causeway and bodies were sighted near the bridge.

The crash came on a heavy squall that made visibility almost zero. Hailstones as much as one inch in diameter and 50 mph winds were reported.

MacDill is a Strategic Air Command Base.

A B47 normally carries three or four bombs. Names of crew were withheld.

OUTDATED

Silver $1 Sale Almost No Sale

By Associated Press

ELWOOD, Ind.—Local merchants, planning a silver dollar sale here April 26, all must have to shelve the whole project due to a shortage of the "silver" dollars.

The merchants, working through the Elwood Chamber of Commerce, requested 500 silver dollars from the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago.

However, the bank could not fill the order.

Finally the needed dollars were located at the United States Mint in Philadelphia and were transported to and stored in Elwood.

The reason the silver dollars were so hard to find was simple—one was minted after 1935. All 500 "whites" sent to Elwood are dated 1922.

Insurance Firm Plans Addition to Main Office

Picture on Page 10

By BART GRABOW
Business Editor

Plans to build a 6-story addition to its present home office at 18th and Meridian, where the offices of the Grain Dealers Mutual Insurance Co.

O. M. East, president, said construction of the 60,000-square-foot addition will begin May 1. Cost is expected to exceed $500,000.

Size of the building will be the southwest corner of 18th and Meridian, where the offices of the Grain Dealers Mutual Insurance Co.

Completion of the project is expected by October, 1959. Architect is Alden Miranda and the general contractor is Leslie Colver.

East said the new building would be the first in the city to be an electrical store and the first three floors to the company's building just to the south, built in 1945.

Durham to Hear State's Plan

By Associated Press

After months of planning a multimillion dollar West 38th road and bridge project on his own, County Commissioner Lester (Bill) Durham today decided to see how it fits into the state Highway Department's program.

When he meets with highway officials Friday at 10 a.m., he'll learn he's been planning a six-lane highway along the same route where the state plans to build an interstate expressway.

The commissioners already have asked the County Council for a $2 million bond issue to finance the bridge over White River, two other smaller bridges and a railroad underpass, plus widening of West 38th to six lanes between the bridge site and U.S. 52.

Durham said today that the county will build only the portion of the bridge over White River if the commissioners are assured that the state intends to make West 38th between U.S. 52 and White River a part of the interstate highway system.

A proposal for a bond issue to finance the 38th Street project was rejected by the council week before last. The council went to the state highway department to see how the plan was "bazy and incomplete."

16 Die in Plane

MAKID (INS)—Sixteen persons died today when a Spanish airliner crashed into the Mediterranean Sea in flight from Bilbao to Barcelona. It crashed 6 miles from the coast.

Carl T. Bowen, an employee in the state Highway Department's maintenance division, apparently is Tegenard's principal opponent.

"Mr. Bowen will be a formidable candidate," Brown commented.

Tegenard, elected assessor in 1954 at the height of New Deal power and never defeated since, has built up a personal organization in Washington township through the appointment of deputy field assessors.

"I have always given the precinct committee or their vice-committee or someone of their choice the chance to serve as assessor," Tegenard said.

Floods Rout Poles

By Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The swollen Bug and Narw rivers have flooded 63 villages and thousands of acres of farmland around Warsaw in the past 24 hours. The villages included Treblinka, where the Germans killed nearly a million Jews in World War II.

Street Ashtrays Next

By Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty public ashtrays will be installed on New York City streets Tuesday to help control the litter problem. The huge ashtrays, mounted on a heavy pedestal, will be placed at bus stops and other congested sidewalk spots.

Husband Missing in Car Kills Wife, Self

Picture on Page 10

An estranged husband hid in the trunk of his wife's car and fatally wounded her in the head today as she drove away from her sister's eastside home. Then he ended his own life with a bullet in the right temple.

Pauline Hay, 40, 928 N. Tacoma, died at General Hospital of a bullet wound in the back of the head 2 hours after the shooting.

Dead at the shooting scene was Elmer Hay, 38, 2240 N. Tacoma. Hay was a customer service man for Citizens Gas & Coke Utility.

ESTRANGED PAIR HAD 2 CHILDREN

The couple had two children, David, 6, and Patricia, 4. Mrs. Elder said her sister had been separated from her husband since he threatened her with a shotgun four weeks ago.

A divorce action was on file and she had obtained a peace bond on him, Mrs. Elder said. They had been married 12 years.

Mrs. Elder said that after her sister left, "I heard a horn honking. I went to the front door and looked across the street and saw the car on the lawn. I thought she had hit a tree."

"I ran across the street and opened the car door, saw blood on her and saw him lying in the back seat, partly on the floor."

"I knew he had done something to her."

Mrs. Elder said Hay had threatened several times to kill her wife.

Two weeks ago, she said, Hay came to the home of Mrs. Elder's mother, Mrs. William L. Taylor, 625 N. Keystone, and struck his wife.

"I wanted my sister to have him locked up at that time, but she wouldn't do it," Mrs. Elder said.

400,000 U.S. TAX RETURNS DUE IN MAIL

With the deadline closing, more than 400,000 federal income tax returns are expected to be mailed in Indiana before midnight tonight.

According to Sterling M. Dietrich, district director of internal revenue, more than 2,000,000 Hoosier taxpayers will file 1957 returns today.

Dietrich said his office will be open until 9 o'clock to assist taxpayers in filling out their forms. Yesterday, the busiest day of the year, saw 1,300 persons come to his office for help.

If the return isn't postmarked by midnight deadline, the federal government can charge you a penalty at the rate of 5% a month for failing to file a return. If you fail to pay the amount due, you will be charged an extra 6% a year.

(Read Mickey McKay story on Page 11)

Highway Safety Run in 7th Day

Caustically jubilant state police today chalked up another death-free 24 hours in Indiana's record-breaking traffic safety "run."

The state entered its seventh consecutive day without a fatal accident.

It is the longest death-free period in state police records. Authorities emphasized, however, that a delayed report would knock out the record. With half the month gone, the new April record also was shaping up. The 15-day run to see the movie. Currently playing at the Adams is "The Ten Commandments."

East-Side Tragedy Leaves 2 Orphans

Picture on Page 10

An estranged husband hid in the trunk of his wife's car and fatally wounded her in the head today as she drove away from her sister's eastside home. Then he ended his own life with a bullet in the right temple.

Pauline Hay, 40, 928 N. Tacoma, died at General Hospital of a bullet wound in the back of the head 2 hours after the shooting.

Dead at the shooting scene was Elmer Hay, 38, 2240 N. Tacoma. Hay was a customer service man for Citizens Gas & Coke Utility.

ESTRANGED PAIR HAD 2 CHILDREN

The couple had two children, David, 6, and Patricia, 4. Mrs. Elder said her sister had been separated from her husband since he threatened her with a shotgun four weeks ago.

A divorce action was on file and she had obtained a peace bond on him, Mrs. Elder said. They had been married 12 years.

Mrs. Elder said that after her sister left, "I heard a horn honking. I went to the front door and looked across the street and saw the car on the lawn. I thought she had hit a tree."

"I ran across the street and opened the car door, saw blood on her and saw him lying in the back seat, partly on the floor."

"I knew he had done something to her."

Mrs. Elder said Hay had threatened several times to kill her wife.

Two weeks ago, she said, Hay came to the home of Mrs. Elder's mother, Mrs. William L. Taylor, 625 N. Keystone, and struck his wife.

"I wanted my sister to have him locked up at that time, but she wouldn't do it," Mrs. Elder said.

Man Dies in Panic at Museum Fire

By Associated Press

A smoke fire in Manhattan's Museum of Modern Art today sent acid fumes boiling into an adjoining building, where a number of screaming men and women were trapped for a time. At least one man perished.

Before they were rescued, a number of men and women crowded the sixth floor windows of the adjoining structure. Panic stricken, some threatened to jump.

Some fortunate ones, such as those at Holy Trinity school, 912 N. Holmes Ave., were out in time to cheer for the Tribunes as they rode through the city's streets in open convertibles accompanied by pretty girls.

Some less fortunate, like pupils at Washington High school, perished through the windows as flames and the black smoke poured in.

The older women, left out with faces filling the wind, many persons came out of their homes to watch the Tribes go by. Some gave the ball players a chance to be in the moves—or of the home variety—as they flashed cameras at the parade.

The caravan was 15 minutes late in starting from Victory Field. Someone forgot to put signs on the left side of the cars to identify the players. The right sides were loaded, but they had to be filled, too.

Another interruption came at Meridian and Ohio, where the car carrying second baseman Charley Williams coasted out. It was restarted shortly, but didn't catch up until the parade had reached Morris.

Downtown crowds were appreciative, cheering the team as it went by. At Fountain Square another large crowd stood at the curb to applaud.

The caravan made the first of its scheduled stops at the Two-Air shopping center, Southeastern and Pleasant Run Parkway. There Dr. Marvin Sanford, a dentist, pledged to give a beer to Dr. Victor Anderson, a dentist, and manager Andy Cohen, last year's Tribes champion, in the 10th inning.

They were overruled. "Things aren't much better at Yale. I was there three days. I was asked a thousand questions and I was asked a thousand more. And sure enough, it was a 'What's branch water?' 'I told them if they would read Tempon's 'The Brook' they would find out."

Thou Shalt Not

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—The who stole $2,000 from the Adams Theater here yesterday might have changed his mind if he had gone inside to see the movie. Currently playing at the Adams is "The Ten Commandments."