

Jeb Cadou Jr.

Sports Editor

CALLS 'EM

WATCH FOR THE Indianapolis Indians to make one of the most popular appointments possible any day now by renaming Johnny Hutchings as coach of the community-owned baseball club for 1957.

Always a big favorite with fans here, big, clowning Johnny will be the No. 1 aide to Andy Cohen, the new manager of the Indians.

Hutch, a former big league pitcher, would like to have gone to Cleveland as a coach for the big Indians when Kerby Farrell made the jump to the majors and Farrell would like to have had Johnny with him there.

But, Cleveland already had a veteran pitching coach in Mel Harder and the ink hardly was dry on Kerby's contract when Cleveland also signed Eddie Stanky, the former Minneapolis and New York Giants' manager, as third-base coach.

So, Hutchings is due to be back at the same old stand this year, handling Tribe pitchers and coaching runners on the basepaths. It's just a matter of time until the formal

JOHNNY HUTCHINGS

You might say that charity tosses are his Forte.