

Miners Play NM Aggies Today

The University of Texas at El Paso will attempt to six Tuesday when Coach Andy Cohen sends his Miners out after the New Mexico State Aggies at Dudley Field in a single game.

This will be the start of a four-game week and a 17-game month for the Miners who swept a three-game set from Texas Tech last weekend while running their record to 5-2. The Miners now have won their last five games.

Lefty Terry Witt, who tamed the Aggies at Las Cruces last Tuesday, may be Cohen's pitching nominee. Witt worked five and two-third innings in the first Aggie game to get credit for the victory although he needed help from Cohen's bull pen.

Cohen has used lefthanders in the starting roles this season. Besides Witt, he has called upon Harry Milner, Lynn Hunt and Marc Bombard as his starters. All deal from the portside.

The only non-lefties Cohen has employed this spring are Bill Diessehorst and Ron Peterson, who labor in relief.

The Miners tamed Texas Tech three times last weekend and didn't allow an earned run. Hunt got the first win, a 5-2 victory, to lower his earned run average to 3.07. Milner followed for a 4-2 win, his second of the spring, and his earned run average dropped to a healthy 0.64 with Bombard getting the final Tech win, 4-2. Bombard now has a 1.26 ERA.

As a team, the Miners have a splendid 1.96 earned run average, allowing only 14 earned runs in 53 innings. The Miners have committed 21 errors during this same period.

The hitting continues to be a pleasant surprise to Cohen, who expressed great concern before the season started. John Miller is clubbing the ball at a .450 clip; Ron Rush .500; catcher Ron Hix .353; and Mike Ward .391.
