

Here's How

the victim of blind justice. An old pro with a distinguished background in professional baseball, Cohen stepped in when UTEP added baseball to its program in 1963.

"Cohen, fighting against big odds, has battled to bring respectability to Miner baseball. His brother, former major leaguer Sid Cohen, often assists with the UTEP pitchers. Assistant coach Krush Krushwitz, an assistant professor in mathematics, has an interesting name if nothing else.

"But that isn't enough.

(Ed. Note: Again he's right. Andy has done a big job, but he needs help.)

Andy Needs Help

"Cohen needs help. He needs scholarships (he has only one full scholarship now). He needs a practice field (his team works out at a high school field). He needs a replacement for Dudley Field. He even needs uniforms and batting helmets for his team.

(Ed. Note: Hit one of four that time. Andy has equivalent of six full scholarships, still needs more to keep pace with the 15 and 20 of the Arizona schools. He works out at Hugo Meyer Field most of the time. He has uniforms and helmets for now, needs them for the future. And most emphatically he needs a replacement for Dudley Field.)

"It is fitting that Cohen is only a part-time employe at UTEP. It shows how bush the operation really is. (Cohen makes a living selling beer for an El Paso firm).

"Perhaps UTEP should realize that it has an obligation to the WAC to field a representative baseball team. Even if it doesn't feel an obligation to the fans around the league.

"Clearly, help should be on the way for Cohen. He needs it — badly.

"Arizona assistant coach Donnie Lee, talking about the fortunes of baseball, once said: 'Baseball' is a funny game. Some days it is hot, some days it is cold and some days it rains'.

"UTEP baseball is all wet — and it's time to do something about it."

It's Coming—In Time

So speaks the fiery-fingered juvenile from Tucson — for whom a baseball game cannot be complete without a program and press-box feed.

He makes a lot of points, many of them good. But he has youth's typical inability to wait, to recognize that others also are aware of problems and can move only as fast as they can move.

He seems unaware, as do many Arizona writers, that not all states financially support the athletic program of their state university systems. It seems to be his feeling that the UTEP athletic department need only allocate so much money to baseball and the money is there. Not so — it first has to come to the athletic department by way of gate admissions and donations — and it has to be divided among all sports.

Petranek is fairly correct in his assessment of Dudley Field. The park physically is not in such sad shape as he paints, but the location is its major problem.

But he is unwilling to allow time for anything to be done. It must be done now!

His fingering of UTEP for not fielding a representative team in the WAC in baseball is laughable.

If Arizona is his conception of representative let it be remembered that New Mexico took their measure Friday, and that the Miners have beaten New Mexico. The Miners may be in a tough league, but they are not helpless. That 2-1 loss to ASU Friday was no disgrace to any team.

Time will temper the youth — And also improve the things that need improvement.
