

Maynard, Archibald Honored

Wayne Vandenburg, whose track teams have won two national titles for the University of Texas at El Paso and have promised more, Tuesday night was honored as El Paso's Sportsman of the Year at the Annual Sports Awards Banquet of Temple Mount Sinai Men's Club.

Don Maynard, record holding flanker back for the New York Jets of the American Conference of the National Football League, was named Pro Athlete of the Year and Nate "The Skate" Archibald, spectacular U.T. El Paso basketball star was honored as Amateur Athlete of the Year.

Vandenburg, whose identity as the honoree was maintained in secrecy until the announcement, had only one comment to make:

"For the first time the fastest mouth in the west is speechless."

Vandenburg's team won the Western Athletic Conference championship, the NCAA cross country championship and the United States Track and Field Federation Championship in recent months.

The 28-year-old track coach has stated openly that he intends to win the NCAA Indoor and Outdoor track and field titles.

Henry P. "Hank" Iba, who retires this year after 34 years as head basketball coach at Oklahoma State University, gave a spirited charge to the more than 300 men and boys who turned out for the annual event.

Urging that Russia and other European countries are making great strides in challenging U.S. supremacy in Olympic Basketball, he called for more closeness in the family as a solution to some of today's youth problems.

"As a coach we are trying to return a son to the family as an improved person, but we must have the cooperation and help from the family to do this."

Iba cited the needs for any boy to become an athlete:

—Overcoming the common problems of selfishness and carelessness;

—Dedication, and

—Self discipline.

Billy Rosen, president of the Men's Club, presented Iba with a golf sweater and a pair of golfing shoes as special gifts from the club.

Andy Cohen acted as master of ceremonies for the program. George McCarty introduced Mr. Iba. Rabbi Floyd Fierman gave the invocation.
