

just drop the floor!

Along the sports trail . . .

Hotstove league department:
The Denver Bears will play a 19-game exhibition schedule this spring. For the third straight year the Bears will train at Lake Wales, Fla., with pitchers and catchers scheduled to report March 15 and the other members of the squad March 17. Ralph Houk, who is currently piloting the San Juan team in the Puerto Rican league, will direct the Bears again this year. Houk is the only manager the Bears have had since entering Triple A ball. Houk's predecessor, Andy Cohen, has been named to lead the Indianapolis Indians this season.

What's next? The traditional battle smell of the gymnasium may be on the way out — a victim of the forward march of science.

Woolite, the new cold-water soap, is the answer, according to a hygienic release received by the sports department. Basketball socks, trunks, sweat suits and the like can be washed overnight without fear of shrinkage, says the Woolite propaganda mill. Clean socks! How dainty can we get?

How did your car fare? Ford r