JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Dec. 2—Two exhibition games will be played by the Milwaukee Braves in Wichita next Spring, it was learned here today.

One of the games will be against another Major League club and the other will be against the Wichita ball club.

It will mark the first appearance of the Milwaukee club in Wichita. The old Boston Braves also missed Wichita in their spring exhibition tours.

No formal announcement was made by the Milwaukee or Wichita front offices but the information on the two Wichita exhibitions came from an unimpeachable source at the Major-Minor League Baseball Meetings.

While the meetings actually formally opened today, there was much activity in the smoke-filled rooms and hotel lobbies yesterday.

Among highlights:

1. Wid Matthews, newly appointed to the Chicago Cubs' front office, was hanging close to the Milwaukee Braves' brass. General managers for rival clubs get together for one of three reasons—swap, buy or sell.
2. The American Association set aside the dates of July 15-16 for its All-Star Game in the city of the first place club.
3. Andy Cohen, the ex-Western League manager at Denver and newly appointed Indianapolis Indians skipper in the American Association, expressed confidence the Indians' new working agreement with the Chicago White Sox will produce good ball players.
4. American Association directors put off until Wednesday the adoption of a 1957 schedule but agreed to cut down travel for next season. Their plan is to make six trips instead of the 12 they took last season. That means longer home stands and longer road trips.
5. Association President Ed Doherty admitted he sees red when he has to listen to Phil O'Hara, the Tampa, Fla., public relations counsel who is representing the Cuban owners of the Louisville, Ky., franchise. O'Hara survived nearly a dozen invitations to get out of the Associations directors' meeting yesterday while attempting to show why he was authorized to represent Louisville at the baseball meetings. He stayed in the meeting room nearly an hour, maintaining that Cuban owners Victor Menocal and associates who ran the Colonels in the past season, are the rightful ones to run the club next season. The late offer to pay off some $50,000 in 1956 debts isn't expected to be accepted by the Jefferson County Court in Kentucky which handled the bankruptcy proceedings for the club now in receivership.

6. In defense of his employers Menocal and associates of Havana, Cuba, O'Hara blamed Louisville's plight on Joe Cambria, who handled the Colonels' business office for the Cubans. O'Hara earlier in the Louisville franchise fight was employed by the same Cambria. Menocal and his Cuban associates were "villified" by a small group in Louisville, claimed O'Hara, and Cambria was the cause for it. Louisville people didn't like Cambria's way of operating but he says the Menocal group now has an "honest and righteous plan" for 1957 at Louisville. "He (O'Hara) is agin' him today, I don't know what he'll be tomorrow," quipped Association President Doherty.

7. Reports that Doherty was armed with a Jacksonville court order to eject Cambria of the Colonels from the Association meeting got around before the meeting opened. Cambria didn't show as expected. O'Hara stepped in, and there was no court order barring him.

The meeting opened officially today with a promotion clinic. The Major League draft was the other item on the agenda for the day.

Among prize draft candidates was Dick Guettler, newly purchased Wichita Braves outfielder, who hit 67 home runs last season for Shreveport, La., in the Texas League. Major-Minor League agreement amendments will head tomorrow's session and the triple-A draft is on Wednesday.
