Robertson to NBA, Coach Predicts

In This Corner

Baseball's Top Cager

FOUR YEARS AGO the Ohio State Buckeyes didn't even make it into the National Collegiate Basketball Association playoffs but they boasted of a player who rated as one of the best five in the nation.

The player's name was Frank Howard and he made about every All-America basketball team put out for the year of 1957.

Howard since has moved over to baseball with the Los Angeles Dodgers' organization and he has been doing his bit this spring to transform the attention of sports fans from basketball to baseball.

Right now, the 6-7 slugger is on the fence where the Dodgers' 1960 plans are concerned.

Howard is in the unhappy position of having to try to earn a job with a world's championship club, and even for the much-heralded Howard that is a tough proposition.

Adding to his woe is the fact that Dodgers have one of the best defensive first basemen in baseball in Gil Hodges, an old pro who has played in a half-dozen World Series.

Probably, Howard will be ...

Will Pass Up Globetrotters

'Big O' Wants Home, Security

NEW YORK (AP)—Oscar Robertson, the Big O of college basketball, will do his pro playing for a National Basketball Assn. club, undoubtedly Cincinnati, rather than the Harlem Globetrotters.

That was the word today from George Smith, coach of the three-time All-America who graduates from the University of Cincinnati this spring.

Oscar was not in a talkative mood regarding his future basketball plans after starring in a losing cause in the East's 67-66 victory over the West in the New York Herald Tribune's Fresh Air Fund all-star game Saturday. But Smith, who coached the Western team, said:

"I think I know Oscar. He is not concerned with a fantastic salary as the Globetrotters figure to offer him. He wants a home, security and a chance to build a future. As you know he is getting married in June.

"He figures the Globetrotters wouldn't offer him all of that since the team is constantly on the go. ...

Around the Links
By The Eagle Sports Staff

Wichita and area golfers were out by the thousands over the weekend, thanks to spring's belated debut for 1960. Every country club and golf course here reported great turnouts Friday, Saturday and Sunday, after more than a month of inactivity because of snowbound greens and homebound golfers.

Thus, the Evening Eagle once again inaugurates its semi-weekly golf column, "Around the Links," which will continue through spring and summer and fall, and until once again snow is so drifted on fairways and greens merely finding your ball ranks with par.

AT CLAPP MEMORIAL Park, new pro Johnny Overby got his baptism as head man at that southeast public layout as nearly 600 golfers went around Saturday and Sunday. Overby, who came to Clapp from MacDonald Golf Course, reminded Clapp's ...

Wilkens Slight Worries Newell

By The Associated Press

Providence Dandy Left Off All-Stars

Coach Pete Newell thinks his college All-Star team faces a "rough" job in this week's Olympic basketball tryouts — and that the absence of amazing Lenny Wilkens will make it even rougher.

"Wilkens is terrific," said Newell after watching the slender backcourt star from Providence College pop in the winning goal for the East with five seconds left in Saturday night's 67-66 game against the West before a sellout crowd of 18,496 at Madison Square Garden.

"I don't know why he wasn't named to our Olympic tryout squad," said Newell, who is trying to mold his stars into a unit in time for the opening of the tryout tourney in Denver on Thursday.

Wilkens, who was voted the "most valuable player" in the National Invitation Tournament on March 19, shared "most valuable" honors in the East-West game with East teammate Jerry West, who led the scoring with ...

'SPORTS OF THE TIMES'

After 30 Years Away, Cohen Recalls Majors

CLEARWATER, Fla.—When Andy Cohen joined the Giants in 1926, he merely had to beat out Frank Frisch for the job at second base. No one was beating Frisch for anything in those days. A year later the Fordham Flash had been traded for Rogers Hornsby and the Rajah took over the job at second. No one could beat out Hornsby, either.

But in 1928 both Hall of Famers had departed and Andy Cohen was the Giant second baseman. In no time at all he was the darling of the East Side, the Bronx, Bensonhurst and way stations. So sensational was his hitting that a tabloid began printing a daily box, comparing Cohen's average of .400-plus with Hornsby's .350-minus. After a couple of weeks the blunt-spoken Rajah came to town with the Braves.

"It's a dirty trick that they're playing on that kid," ...

... waitresses. He'd write down spinach but that meant potatoes. He had a whole code of his own.

"We were in vaudeville together, telling stories and singing parodies, in an act called 'Cohen & Hogan'—except in Boston. Then we smartly switched billing and had 'Hogan & Cohen.' We got $1,800 a week and, if we didn't kill vaudeville, we sure helped.

"After the 1929 season McGraw traded me off to Newark and I went great. I was hitting .318 and set an International League record of 59 consecutive games without an error. So Mac came over to see me. 'Andy,' he said, 'I'm bringing you back.' That day I broke my leg.

"So I've had a long wait to get back; more than 30 years. It's worth waiting for, too, because there's nothing in life quite like the big leagues."

East at West Cinder Meet

Postponed Events Scheduled Tuesday

A wealth of talented runners stamps Wichita East as favorite when the five City League high school track teams compete on West's cinders Tuesday at 3:45 p.m.

The meet was postponed from March 18.

East won seven of the 10 running events to capture the team title at the North invitational last Friday. Only track firsts to escape the Aces were the 100- and 220-yard dashes, and the 180-yard low hurdles.

Southeast and North are figured to give East a hard time, while scrapping for the No. 2 position.

Southeast edged the Redskins for the runner-up spot last week by two points—or one and one-fourth inches.

Virgil Boll handed the Golden Buffaloes a discus first with a 143-8 toss. North's Gary Jenkins ...
