The arm belongs to Bob Shaw, star right-handed pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, American league champions of 1959.

The bat belongs to Bill (Moose) Skowron, slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees.

Minneapolis General Manager George Brophy announced Saturday that both had agreed to appear at the affair. Skowron, for several years a resident of Austin, Minn., has attended several previous dinners but this will be his first appearance in a speaking role.

SHAW WAS a major factor in the White Sox winning their first American league pennant in 40 years last season. He blossomed out to win 18 and lose only six in '59 and post a brilliant 2.69 earned run average.

Then after losing his first start against Los Angeles in the World Series, he came back to collect one of Chicago's two victories. He won the sixth 1-0 with late inning help.

The tall, 26-year-old went to Detroit after having an 8-4 record at Charleston in 1957. He had an ordinary 5-4 record as a reliefer in 1958 which he split between Detroit and the White Sox before coming into his own under Manager Al Lopez last year.

Skowron has swung one of the most potent Yankee bats for half dozen seasons although injuries have hampered him throughout his career. He has a major league batting average of .304. He hit over .300 his first four years in the AL with a top of .340 in 1954.

Last year Skowron, now 29, hit .298 in 74 games before an injury put him out the last half of the season. A couple of Moose's highlights were a grand slam home run against Brooklyn in the seventh game of the 1956 World Series and a three-run homer against Milwaukee that clinched the seventh game of the 1958 series for New York.

A FOOTBALL star at Purdue, Skowron played for Kansas City in the American Association in 1952-53, leading the league in home runs with 31 and runs batted in with 134 in 1952.

Others previously announced for the program to be emceed by Halsey Hall, are guest of honor Andy Cohen, Houston Manager Enos Slaughter, former Cardinal star Rip Collins, and Boston Red Sox scout Jack Onslow.

Tickets, priced at $10 and including five grandstand admissions for 1960 Minneapolis games, are on sale at Metropolitan stadium, Billy and Marty's and Duffy's.
