Flu Bug Takes Mauch From Baseball Booster Lineup Tonight

A California flu bug took Minneapolis Manager Gene Mauch out of the lineup Sunday for tonight's 13th Baseball Booster banquet at the Pick-Nicollet hotel.

"Can't make it, sorry," phoned the 1959 American Association "manager of the year" from Los Angeles yesterday, "but tell the fans the Millers are shooting for first place in 1960.

"We finished third my first year and won the playoffs. We finished second last year and won the playoffs. This year we're aiming for the top with a younger, speedier club," Mauch said.

Mauch, who said "my playing days are behind me and my managing days—in the majors, I hope—are ahead of me," already has his Miller roster picked:

"We'll have Haywood Sullivan and Don Gile to catch, Ron Jackson or Jim Marshall from the Red Sox on first base, rookie Carl Yastrzemski at second base, either Al Moran or Jim Mahoney at shortstop and either Marlan Coughtry or Shep Frazier at third base.

"In the outfield, we'll have Jerry Mallett, Lu Clinton and Lee Howell plus Tommy Umphlett. Our pitching will be supplied by the Red Sox—perhaps Earl Wilson—and we've already got Erv Palica, Billy Muffett and Chet Nichols to build around."

Mauch will be coaching at third base and player-coach Red Robbins, best pinch batsman in the AA, at first base.

General Manager George Brophy of the Millers will receive Mauch's second straight "manager-of-the-year" award from AA President Ed Doherty tonight.

Old-time guest of honor Andy Cohen reported last night: "It's wonderful to be honored by Minneapolis fans. I spent nine of the happiest years of my baseball career here."

Cohen, the first ex-manager to be named to the Eau Claire Hall of Fame last week, is tickled at the opportunity to return to the majors as infield coach for the Phillies this spring.

Other head table baseball notables to be presented by toastmaster Halsey Hall tonight are righthander Bob Shaw of the White Sox, first baseman Bill Showron of the Yankees, Houston Manager Enos Slaughter, Boston scout-comedian Jack Onslow, ex-Cardinal Rip Collins and Boston farm aid Charlie Wagner.

Doors will open at 6:15 tonight, the show will start at 6:30 and it's an 800-ticket sellout.

Kundla Expects Hawkeyes to Be 'Fired-up' Tonight

By SID HARTMAN
Minneapolis Tribune Sports Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa—John Kundla, Minnesota basketball coach, expects fired-up opposition here tonight when the Gophers meet Iowa.

"You can be sure that Sharm Scheuerman (Iowa coach) hasn't let his boys forget we beat them 70-61 at Minneapolis," John said.

"THE FACT that Iowa lost to Michigan State Saturday won't help our cause," he continued. "They know a win over us is a must in order to stay in the Big Ten race."

This is Kundla's first trip to Iowa City since 1939 when he was a Gopher player, but he knows what to expect when a Minnesota team takes the floor here.

"The crowd will be rabid, which will be in Iowa's favor," John commented. "But if we play our game we can win. We can't take Iowa if we make as many mistakes as we did against Northwestern."

The Hawkeyes are undefeated in seven games at home. They have defeated Michigan State, Purdue and Northwestern in Big Ten games here.

KUNDLA figures the Gopher bench will be more valuable against Iowa than it was for Northwestern.

"We were in trouble at Northwestern when we lost Ray Cronk on fouls," said John. "That cost us the game. We couldn't use Jerry Butler at Northwestern because he can't guard a little man.

"Against Iowa we can use Butler because we can match him with Don Nelson, Nolden Gentry or one of the other Iowa big boys."

Kundla scouted the Hawkeyes on television Saturday when they bowed 90-80 to Michigan State for their second loss against four victories in the Big Ten.

"Iowa played a great second half," said John. "They got off to a poor start and this Horace Walker of State killed them early. But they stopped Walker in the second half."

SCHEUERMAN hopes the Hawkeyes can reverse the score of the Minnesota game, just as Michigan State pulled the switch on Iowa. Iowa beat Michigan State 92-79 at Iowa City and then lost at East Lansing.

"We played a bad first 10 minutes against Michigan State," Sharm said. "Once we settled down we played them even.

"Gentry missed three days of practice last week after having a wisdom tooth pulled. He said he felt all right, but I'm sure he didn't. I couldn't take him out of the game because we were being outrebounded so badly and needed his height (6-7). But he should be all right for Minnesota."

The Hawkeyes came up with a new player against State—6-5 Mike Dull, who scored 20 points.

"WE HAVEN'T used Dull much, but when Mike Woods got hurt we gave him a chance and he shot much better than we anticipated."

Sharm said he expects to employ the same lineup which started against Minnesota in Minneapolis with the exception of Bobby Wash guard in place of Ron Zagar at guard.

Good Joke On States That Scoff at NBA

CULLUM'S COLUMN
by
DICK CULLUM

THE BOXING COMMISSIONS OF NEW YORK AND Massachusetts have got themselves into a pretty pickle by being subservient to the airy dictates of Sugar Ray Robinson.

They permitted Robinson to retain their version of the middleweight championship more than a year beyond the normal term. Then they permitted him to avoid risking the title against a worthy challenger! Consequently, they now have on their hands one of the poorest champions boxing has ever dignified with a glove.

If Paul Pender takes his undeserved title and hides it, remaining as champion by one devise or another for two or three years, it will be what New York and Massachusetts asked for.

In this situation the National Boxing association comes off well. It gave Robinson a fair opportunity to defend his championship, then vacated it. Gene Fullmer then stopped Carmen Basilio in an NBA championship fight.

BEST WE HAVE

YOU SAY THAT FULLMER IS NOT a great champion. True. All that can be said for him is that he is the best we have; that is how we have to measure champions—outside of New York and Massachusetts. Moreover, and this is a considered opinion, Fullmer could take Pender and the Robinson of today on the same night with a half hour rest between, and beat them both.

The situation in which California finds itself is ironic. It resigned from the NBA and declared that it might join with New York and Massachusetts. Its reason was that the NBA had not rid boxing of hoodlum influences.

Fullmer

Well, if California wants to go that way it immediately has the satisfaction of inheriting a champion whom half the members of the California commission could beat—if given the benefit of a Boston decision.

THE MATHEMATICS OF IT

WHEN ROBINSON WON THE TITLE from Basilio in March of 1958 he was less than half the fighter he had been at his peak. When he lost the title to Pender last Friday he was less than half the fighter he had been against Basilio. Yet Robinson was still twice the fighter Pender was and, actually, did not lose a round to Pender. That gives us a fair measure of the ability of the new New York, Massachusetts, champion.

NOW HEAR THIS

DON'T RUN AWAY NOW, JUST because we are going to talk about physical fitness.

This may be a shortcut of interest to kids and parents alike.

It is the Minnesota AAU Open Calisthentics championships. The meet will be held Dec. 28-29, but preparation begins right now.

This will be a contest in free exercise, a routine involving a variety of movements contributing to grace, posture, strength, co-ordination and good health.

Here are the good points:

● It is competitive on a point-scoring basis. It is, in fact, included in the Olympic Games.

● It may be engaged in with equal pleasure and benefit by both boys and girls, but in separate competitions.

● It can be learned by all age groups, starting at seven.

● It may be practiced in a limited space, indoors or outdoors.

● It requires no equipment.

● It may be taught and supervised by any one familiar with gymnastics, dancing, tumbling.

● Its' several movements are so graded that a novice may derive pleasure and benefit from the very beginning.

● It is popular and widely practiced in Europe which may explain, in part, why Europeans, generally, have better posture, grace, weight control and co-ordination than Americans.

The Optimist club of Minneapolis is sponsoring the Minnesota championships. It hopes that many schools, playgrounds, settlement houses, neighborhood groups will get kids started.

The Minnesota sophomore, Bob McDonough, captured the senior division by winning the two-mile event by two yards.

The St. Paul champions are Tom McPartlin, intermediate boys; Beverly Gorton, intermediate girls, and Mary Meyers, junior girls.

Miller Six Falls 7-2; Goalie Selinger Hurt

Special to the Minneapolis Tribune

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — Goalie Joe Selinger of Minneapolis suffered an ankle injury early in the second period and the Millers lost 7-2 to Fort Wayne Sunday in an International Hockey league game before 5,555 spectators.

His injury was not the prime factor in the loss, however, because defenseman Bill Steenson moved into the nets and allowed only two goals after 3:10 of the second session.

Steenson had 22 stops as goalie, a position he never had played before in organized hockey.

Fort Wayne broke to a 3-1 lead in the first period, with Bob McCusker hitting the first of his two goals at 2:11 of that session.

The Millers pulled within 3-2 on Bruce Lea's goal in the second period when Fort Wayne was two players short. But the Komets came back with two in the next three minutes for a 5-2 bulge.

It was just previous to Andy Voyken's goal at 3:10 for the 5-2 lead that Selinger injured his ankle. He left the game after Voyken's shot.

'BONUS BABIES' LAND ON '60 MILLER ROSTER

Infielder Carl Yastrzemski ($80,000), pitcher Don Schwall ($50,000), shortshop Al Moran ($35,000), catcher Archie Skeen ($35,000) and catcher Hay Sullivan ($30,000) represent over $200,000 in Boston bonus money on the 1960 Minneapolis baseball roster.

The 35-player list, which will report to Miller manager Gene Mauch at Deland, Fla., Mar. 12, includes 17 pitchers, seven infielders, eight outfielders and three catchers.

Leading the way among the newcomers are righthander Schwall, who won 23 at Alpine, Texas, last year, and the southpaw-swinging Yastrzemski, who batted .377 at Raleigh to lead Carolina league batsmen.

New Voting Brings No Change on Czar

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. —(AP)—Backers of Marshall Leahy remained firm Sunday night as opposition to the San Francisco lawyer fluctuated between Austin H. Gunsel and Don Kellett in the marathon contest for the National football league commissionership.

After 21 ballots — seven yesterday—Leahy held fast to seven votes, while Gunsel bounced back into the muddy picture with four supporters. The ballots for the acting commissioner were the first since he polled one on the ninth round Thursday.

STARTING with the 15th ballot yesterday afternoon and holding firm through the 20th, Leahy had seven and Kellett, Baltimore general manager, four. Then, on the 21st round, the minority group switched to Gunsel.

Owners cast their first ballots yesterday since Thursday night. The situation was virtually unchanged. At that time, Leahy had seven votes and Kellett four. Through each ballot, the Chicago Bears passed. Accounting for the monotonous 7-4-1 announcement.

Chairman Joe Donoghue, vice president of the Philadelphia Eagles, said the lineup on the vote was the same as it has been—Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Baltimore for either Kellett or Gunsel, and Los Angeles, San Francisco, Green Bay, Chicago Cardinals, New York, Cleveland and Detroit for Leahy.

The first order of business yesterday was a decision of league owners instructing the commissioner, whoever he will be, to negotiate a contract with the Orange Bowl for a game between the league's second place clubs next January.

THE ONLY HOPE for an end to the stubborn battle appeared to be election of a compromise choice for one year. Joseph Donoghue of Philadelphia and Edwin P. Anderson, Detroit president, have been mentioned prominently in this vein. Both have said they will take the job if the owners want them.

Donoghue, 64, who is assistant league treasurer, says he would serve only for a year and no more.

"I don't want the job but I'll take it if it will help break this stalemate and give us a chance to find a man agreeable to all clubs," he said.

Garmaker Traded to New York for Felix, $25,000

By TOM BRIERE
Minneapolis Tribune Sports Writer

The "losing-but-not-loving-it" Lakers won an off-court battle for survival in Minneapolis Sunday by selling guard Dick Garmaker to New York for an estimated $25,000 in cash plus 6-11 center Ray Felix.

President Bob Short of the Lakers announced the transaction in this manner: "We're not winning with what we've got. I could have sold either Elgin Baylor, Rudy LaRusso or Tom Hawkins and received enough cash to pay all my creditors, but this would be tantamount to moving the franchise.

"The only other marketable player was Garmaker. I reasoned that (1) perhaps the addition of Felix, another big man, will help the club where we're hurting the most and (2) it gives us some financial relief at this time."

Garmaker Felix

THE TRADE also involved the Lakers' No. 2 draft choice for a future draft choice from the Knicks.

"We'll continue with four forwards, three centers and three guards; later we may market a big man," Short added. "I'm prepared to trade any and all on the club except the untouchables—Baylor, LaRusso and Hawkins."

Coach Jim Pollard of the Lakers said, "I hated to see Garmaker go, but maybe Felix will help us. We haven't been getting much production from our centers."

Garmaker, an 11-point shooter who needs the ball to be effective, was shaken by the suddeness of the deal. "I hate to leave my home and insurance business in Minneapolis," Gar said. "I'll probably report to New York since the season has only about six weeks left."

FELIX, 29, at 6-11 and 220 pounds, has been playing with Allentown in the Eastern league. But he comes highly-recommended on the scouting report of Louie Mohs, who advised the Lakers' draft of LaRusso.

Properly handled, perhaps Felix, a Long Island grad in 1953, can return to something approaching the 17-point norm he hit in his first National Basketball association season with Baltimore in 1954. Since then Ray has averaged 14, 12, 12, 12 and 10 points per game in succeeding seasons with the Knicks.

Garmaker, a Hibbing, Minn., native, has been with the Lakers since the 1955-56 season after breaking all existing scoring records at Minnesota. He averaged 5, 16, 16 and 13 in four seasons here and was named to the All-Star game squad four years running. Player-coach Carl Braun of New York will remove himself from the active list to make room for Garmaker.

MEANTIME, Elgin Baylor has the third finger of his right hand splinted with three stitches. "I can play against Cincinnati at Detroit Wednesday," Baylor said, "but I don't think I'll be able to shoot much until the finger heals and I can take the splint off."

There was no break nor dislocation, x-rays revealed.

Big Ten Sets New Vote on Rose Bowl Pact

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Big Ten athletic conference indicated Sunday the possibility of another playing contract in the Rose Bowl football game.

At a joint meeting of athletic directors and faculty representatives, the Big Ten decided to vote again on the Rose Bowl matter at its March meetings.

The mere fact the Rose Bowl question was revived showed the Big Ten is not willing to drop out of the picture.

As one source put it:

"IF THEY DIDN'T want any part of the Rose Bowl, they wouldn't have had to bring up the matter again. That was decided last spring."

Last spring the conference fell into a 5-5 deadlock vote on the question of further league participation. Since a majority was needed, the tie killed chances of further conference participation.

However, the Big Ten at that time left a loophole allowing individual teams to play in the bowl if invited. Such a team would only need to accept an invitation and could participate without conference interference. And by the same token, such a team would not have to share its receipts with other league members.

Assistant commissioner Bill Reed pointed out that circumstances have changed since last spring when the Pacific Coast conference was about to fold.

"When the Big Ten voted against the bowl last spring," said Reed, "There was some question as to who would provide the opposition. Now there is a new set of circumstances."

REED WAS referring to the downfall of the PCC and the birth of the Athletic Association of Western Universities.
