

HANDY ANDY

DENVER (AP) — Andy Cohen was the first person ever to appear in American Assn. all-star baseball games as a player and then as a manager.

He played second base for the Minneapolis Millers in the 1934 and 1935 games. Last season he managed the Denver Bears as they lost 10-2 to the all-star team.