

Andy Cohen Holds All Star Distinction

DENVER — AP — Andy Cohen was the first person ever to appear in American Association all star baseball games as a player and then as a manager.

He played second base for the Minneapolis Millers in the 1934 and 1935 games. Last season he managed the Denver Bears as they lost 10 to 2 to the all star team.