Huntsman: 'Job Scary', Vols Expected to Win

By DERRY EADS

Stan Huntsman has known success in coaching track from two angles, and he admits starting at the top is kind of scary.

Huntsman, who won Little All-American honors as a fullback at Wabash College and laurels in track by establishing school records in the shot put, discus and javelin, started coaching at Ohio University.

"The year before I came to Ohio," Huntsman said, "the school had scored only four points in the conference meet. I had a chance to develop the school's track program by myself."

OHIO, IN Huntsman's 14-year tenure, had 20 All-Americans and finished high in the NCAA rankings.

Huntsman replaced Chuck Rohe as head coach at the University of Tennessee in 1971. Rohe had won seven straight Southeastern Conference outdoor championships and 21 track and cross-country titles in the previous nine years.

"The pressure is really tough," Huntsman pointed out, "because they expect you to win at Tennessee in track. It's good in a way because it keeps me going, but it is also scary at times."

HE ADDED that it is getting increasingly difficult to win in the SEC.

"SEC is getting better by leaps and bounds. The University of Florida is always there. LSU is up and coming. Alabama hired two new coaches to concentrate on building up its track."

ENMU'S First Track

Bill Silverberg, Eastern New Mexico University's track coach, hasn't exactly had the ideal conditions at Portales the last couple of years.

"THIS IS OUR first year with a track," remarked Silverberg. "We had been running on dirt and rocks. It makes a big difference for the athletes to run on a smooth surface."

Although Silverberg has not been able to get great depth for his team, he has been able to recruit several outstanding individuals like Mike Boit, the Olympian middle-distance runner. Silverberg is hoping that Boit will help ENMU in further recruiting in the next three years.

The Greyhounds are taking their lumps this year but Silverberg is optimistic.

"MOST OF THE kids are freshmen," he said, "and I am looking forward to them developing strong in the next couple of years."

"We are glad now that schools like UTEP and Arizona are putting us on their schedule so that we can go against good competition. We may lose, but we are gaining a lot of experience."

Losing Second Effort

If the University of Texas at El Paso's baseball team counted only the first games it played each of its opponents this year, the Miners would have a 7-1 record.

The Miners have only been able to gain two victories over two opponents this year — Hardin-Simmons and New Mexico State University.

U.T.-El Paso lost the first game of a doubleheader to Texas Tech in the two teams' first clash before taking the second. The Miners won the first game of two-contest meetings with Denver, Colorado State, Southern Colorado State College and Lubbock Christian before losing the second games.

Andy Cohen's Miner nine have a chance to break up this jinx Friday at 1 p.m. when they host New Mexico Highlands for a doubleheader.

Foes Find Mistakes Of Miners

There seems to be only one problem with the U.T.-El Paso baseball team — it does the wrong thing at the wrong time.

The Miners breezed to a 9-1 win in the first game of a twin-bill against Lubbock Christian College yesterday, but dropped the second 7-5.

Errors by Larry McKay, Malcolm McLean and pitcher David Waide led to the Miners' collapse in the second encounter. LCC poured across all of its runs in the first four innings, five of which were unearned.

WAIDE (1-2) pitched creditably, allowing only six hits, but had two wild pitches. The junior southpaw was relieved in the seventh after giving up a leadoff single.

"We don't make mistakes," observed Miner coach Andy Cohen, "until they count."

U.T.-El Paso only made one error in the first game and that, ironically, led to LCC's only run off starter Ray Gregerson (3-0).

The Miners (11-9) host New Mexico Highlands in a double-header Friday at 1 p.m.
