E.P. Banker Stresses Need Of Free Enterprise System

The free enterprise system is necessary to the support of all types of social responsibilities, Granville (Bill) Green, vice president of Southwest National Bank told the Beautify El Paso Assn., yesterday, at the installation luncheon held at the Empire Club.

"The business community contributes money, and responsible individuals contribute time to projects which insure freedom of education, freedom of religion, and other freedoms we enjoy, ecological projects, and other worthwhile activities," Green said.

"SOME PEOPLE try to make the business community the scapegoat for all the social ills. The American free enterprise system is criticized by many, but without it, we don't have the competitive system on which this country was built.

"Dr. Ernest Campbell, of the National Radio Pulpit, has said, 'Not America — Love it or Leave it — but America, change it or lose it.' I like that.

"When I hear 'America, love it or leave it,' I cringe. It's like saying, when your children are bad — don't love them any more."

GREEN CALLED on everyone to do his part to strengthen the free enterprise system through which the people of this country have freedom for leisure, and spiritual, intellectual and educational freedoms.

Mrs. William Reynolds Jr. was installed president of the Beautify El Paso Assn.

Other new officers include Mrs. George Kistenmacher, first vice president; Ted Harris, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Christenson, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles True, corresponding secretary; Leslie Parker, treasurer, and Charles True, assistant treasurer.

Andy Cohen was installing officer. Cohen has served as president of the organization for the past three years.
