Miner Bats Are Booming, Blast Lobos

Andy Cohen can readily forgive the one sore spot on the U.T.-El Paso baseball team.

Cohen is savoring his Miners' two victories over the University of New Mexico last weekend. U.T.-El Paso topped the Lobos 5-4 Friday and split Saturday, winning the second game of a doubleheader 6-4 after losing the first 7-5.

THE MINERS pounded out 29 hits in the three game series for an average of .274. Shortstop Herb von Hagen and first baseman Barry Alburtis did the most damage.

Von Hagen hit 5-8 while Alburtis blasted two home runs and hit 4-12.

The only fault the Miners have at this point is in fielding. They made five errors in the series with UNM and gave up seven unearned runs.

U.T.-El Paso now stands at 17-11 for the season and 2-1 in Western Athletic Conference play. The Miners will play Arizona State University (33-5, 3-0) Friday and Saturday in Tempe.
