

NM Lobos Shove Miners in Cellar

Special to The Herald-Post

ALBUQUERQUE — Andy Cohen today hoped his U.T. El Paso Miners could avoid a one-inning collapse such as occurred yesterday when they lost the first game of a Western Athletic Conference series against the New Mexico Lobos.

They got off to a three-run lead over the Lobos but New Mexico came back with six of their own in the sixth to win 6-3 and shove the Miners in the WAC cellar with an 0-7 record. New Mexico is 1-6.

After holding the Lobos scoreless through the fifth, Ron Wrobel was touched for six runs in the sixth. Errors helped cause his downfall. Lobo Jim Weber went all the way for New Mexico and hurled eight innings of shutout ball.
