

Miners see game slip away

Rick Perez had a moment of glory and so did the UTEP Miners. But it was snatched away from them as quickly as it had come.

Perez, Miner rightfielder, drove in two runs to tie the score against Colorado State in the bottom of the eighth inning, then later scored the lead run, only to see CSU rally for a 9-6 win at Dudley Field yesterday.

AFTER RELIEF pitcher Nick Fiorillo walked two batters and was ejected from the game, coach Andy Cohen felt the game got away from the Miners.

"That hurt us when Fiorillo was thrown out. The umpire heard him say something about him. He was talking to me on the mount about the umpire's calls.

"The National Association sent that guy (Scott Ehret) down here and I'm going to tell them I don't want him back.

"WE HIT THE ball pretty well in the eighth, but we didn't hit too well until then," Cohen said. Danny Haygood had three of UTEP's nine hits.

Fiorillo, effective in relief of starter K.C. Nix, was relieved by an unwarmed Wes Zotz. Zotz allowed two singles to propel CSU to its winning margin. The two clubs met again today.
