

Cohen retires as UTEP coach

Andy Cohen has announced his retirement as baseball coach of the U.T. El Paso, but likely will stay on as a consultant on the team.

Cohen turned in his resignation following the end of the season Saturday. He gave the reason as his age.

He coached the Miners for 16 years. He's had a long, successful and a colorful career in the game. So much so that he's known as "Mr. Baseball" in El Paso.

The Miners broke even during the 1978 season, winning 26 games and losing 26. They were 2-15 in the WAC.
