Being honored as an outstanding athlete had meaning for Jennifer Smit.
Her father, who is in town visiting from Holland, was in the audience last night to witness the U.T.-El Paso sophomore shot putter receive an award for women's track at the fifth annual Lions Club "Dinner with the Miners" in the Civic Center.

Last month Smit established an AAUW indoor shot put record with a throw of 52-feet. She was trained how to throw the shot as a youth by her father.
THE AWARDS presentation had several other emotional moments.
Andy Cohen, who reigned as UTEP's head baseball coach from 1963 to 1978, was given a special award by his successor, Larry McFarlin. Cohen expressed surprise and gratitude for the recognition.

James Munyala, three-time NCAA 3,000-meter steeplechase champion and 1978 national indoor mile winner, gave a rare speech after accepting his plaque for track "indoor athlete of the year". Munyala, who has used up his eligibility, made up for four years of near silence on the banquet circuit with a lengthy speech.

OTHER MALE track athletes honored were NCAA outdoor 800-meter champion Peter Lemashon, who was hailed as the next sub-four minute miler by UTEP head coach Ted Banks, and NCAA cross-country runnerup Mike Musyoki.
Jerry Walker was named as the football "athlete of the year". Walker, who also competes on the UTEP baseball team, had a 39-yard punting average for four years.

Kevin Hill was praised for his overall intensity and hustle for four years on the court as reasons for being honored as male "basketball athlete of the year".
THE FEMALE "basketball athlete of the year" went to four-year starter Endi Gil, who was the team's second leading rebounder and third high scorer during the 1978-79 season.

Ruth Ann Jaramillo, who made the all-regional all-around team, was chosen as UTEP's "gymnast of the year". She helped the Miners finish No. 1 in Texas with a 4-0 record.
Picked as volleyball's "athlete of the year" was Diane Bohling, who keyed the squad to a 24-18 overall record and 5-7 conference mark.
