Hints From Heloise

Easy, All-Purpose Stuffing Blends Kitchen Mixture

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: If you have a blender it will be of great interest to you.

I take all leftover, protein-rich, moist, soft, cracker, etc. and, 4 to 6 p.m. 'em all together in the blender.

Blend until I have a fine crumb mixture.

Then I take some of my favorite spices such as onion salt, garlic salt, celery salt, black pepper, onion flakes and even some of the Italian spices, and blend them all together with the crumbs.

Then I store the mixture in an airtight container in my refrigerator (or I'm sure it could be kept in your freezer just as well). And now, when I need stuffing, but quick, dishes, I use it.

I've used it in stuffed tomatoes, green peppers, breaded chicken, chops, fish, oysters, and have even used it on eggplant and squash, and on top of casseroles, macaroni and cheese dishes. Really, I could go on forever.

The secret to its success is the addition of the spices and salt—the difference.

—Mrs. C. Current

Dear Heloise: We have a ghost living with us. In fact, a very naughty ghost whose name is "I Didn't."

How do I know he exists? Well, everything something gets broken and I ask, "Did he do it?" all four of my children quickly reply, "I Didn't."

—Sharon Quan

And, Sharon, you know that naughty little fellow really tormented himself around.

Why, I personally know of two or three homes where he has taken up residence. Or do you reckon he might have neighbors and sisters?

—Heloise

Dear Heloise: One of my daughters was out of the country when two of her children were born.

I would always send them balloons in letters when writing to her daughter. When I suddenly got to visit them I put some balloons in my purse.

On arrival, I opened my purse, gave them the balloons and told them I was the "balding grandmother." It didn't take long until we were great friends.

—Beth Clark

Dear Heloise: I would like to share one of my timepieces with you and your readers.

When mixing flour and water for gravy, try using a paper cup. Then just throw it away when you are finished. It's great to not have to wash that sticky old cup.

—Mrs. M. F. Blair

Dear Heloise: I have a remedy for costume jewelry pins falling off your dress, blouse, etc.

I cut a flat rubber band into tiny squares. Then whenever I put on a costume jewelry pin I first stick the point through the rubber square and then put it through the little rubber square and fasten.

In case the pin comes undone (as it has on many occasions), the rubber prevents it from slipping out of the material.

—Mrs. Chakarian

Dear Heloise: I have a lot on a good idea! I have three pre-adolescents and they all love to paint, but they are always losing their little paint brushes.

When this happens, I give them all some little cotton-tipped swabs to use as paint brushes.

My budding artists think the swabs are great and make all sorts of different designs with them.

—Mrs. H. K. Hawkins

Dear Heloise: I've always made the covers for my sleeve board but was in a hurry to change it the other day, so I used one of my daughter's knee socks.

I had a hole in the heel but the sock got underneath anyway.

It's easier than making covers and it fits better too.

—Mrs. E. S.

Dear Heloise: I have a simple trick to bath brown, boiled potatoes will be shown.

—Mrs. Larry Day

Mrs. Larry Day was hostess for the September meeting. Mrs. Tinker was cohostess.
