

City Council Votes To Keep Washington Man

City Council Thursday extended its $10,000 a year "Man in Washington" contract with the National League of Cities for an additional year. The County last year paid one-third the cost and again will be asked to participate.

Mayor Peter de Wetter said the service has been invaluable in securing coordination at the Washington level on federal programs in which the City has been interested. He said much of the City's success in obtaining federal grants has been due to advance information provided by the service and assistance in preparing aid applications.

He cited a $42 million commitment from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for tenement rehabilitation and new public housing; the $2.7 million Residential Manpower Training Center project; a $104,000 law enforcement grant to establish a police narcotics division; a $36,723 manpower planning grant; a $60,000 HUD bi-national planning grant; $157,000 for summer recreation programs and $31,867 for transportation for summer youth activities and for students holding part-time jobs at White Sands Missile Range and Biggs Field.

Robert E. Gordon, the City's current Washington representative presently is preparing an application to the Department of Labor for funds to finance a Public Service Employment Program.

Loading Zones Set In Downtown Area

The Department of Traffic & Transportation announced Thursday that the majority of the downtown loading zones will be re-signed and only commercial vehicles will be allowed legal parking in these zones.

A commercial vehicle under this definition is one bearing truck license plates or other type vehicle with the company's name printed on the vehicle. The purpose of this change is to reduce loading zone abuse by motorists not actually engaged in loading activities, and help eliminate the double-parking of commercial vehicles to perform their delivery services.

The meter maids will issue warning citations for the balance of this week and all of next week. Real citations will be issued beginning Oct. 19, which carry a $2 fine.
