

'Fly-Swatters' Do-In Cowboys; Miners Sweep!

Talk about fly-swatters! Why Andy Cohen has four of 'em.

No, not the kind Aunt Gladys brings along on a picnic, the kind Andy sends to the plate with a man on third and less than two out.

Four times did Andy get a sacrifice fly in yesterday's twinbill sweep over Hardin-Simmons and two of those occasions produced the winning runs in 3-2 and 5-4 victories.

The double-dosage evening UTEP's record 2-2 while HSU dropped to 2-6. The Cowboys had swept the Miners in two games on Thursday.

Friday, however, was a different story.

DAN MODLINSKI, a 6-2 righthander from Chicago, hurled a three-hitter, the two HSU runs both unearned. Ironically it was thirdsacker Glenn Villareal, disappointed that he failed with the tying runs on base in the last inning the day before, that drove in the eventual winning marker. Villareal pumped a long flyball to left with one gone in the fifth frame to score David Nance. The Miners had scored their initial tally in the second on Keith Rushings SF.

Modlinski managed to survive a sixth inning Cowboy uprising to notch his first victory of the year.

ANOTHER CHICAGO native, righty Steve Klein, started the nightcap but succumbed to wildness in the third after allowing three uns and walking six. Roy Stringer, who opened the game in leftfield, relieved Klein and limited HSU to four hits and one marker over the last four and one-third innings. Stringer picked up the triumph, his first in as many outings.

Villareal came through again in the second game when his smoking double to left produced the go-ahead tally. Terry Dillingham and Bob Downing each produced sacrifice flies in the fray that saw the Miners erase a three-run deficit with a trio of platters in the third.

Foreman Nearing Lawsuit

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPB) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman, facing a possible $2.5-million breach of contract suit involving ancillary rights to his fights, plans to break camp here next week and head for Caracas, Venezuela, site of his March 26 defense against Ken Norton.

KO, Inc., filed the suit against Foreman and is seeking an injunction to prohibit the champion from going ahead with his defense against Norton. The suit names Foreman, his trainer, Dick Sadler, Leroy Jackson, an associate, and three Foreman corporations.

KO, Inc., alleges it entered into a contract with Foreman and Sadler in January 1971 in which it was agreed KO, Inc., would have all ancillary rights stemming from any of Foreman's fights between 1971 and 1975.

Steve Bomse, an attorney for the champion, said Friday he doesn't think KO, Inc., has grounds for a suit.

"I REALLY don't understand it," said Bomse. "I have seen the complaint. I have seen the contract. As far as we're concerned, the contract is unenforceable, if it is, in fact, a contract. We have some serious doubts that it is."
