

Miner Baseballers To Begin 'Streak'

Comedian Billy DeWolfe isn't the only one that's "Bizzzy, bizzzy, bizzzyyy!" these days. UTEP's Andy Cohen has a piece of the action also.

The Miner baseball team observed the Sabbath as a day of rest yesterday to get revved up for five games in six days this week. The "streak" (ardon the expression) started at 2 p.m. today when the Orange hosted Colorado State University, a member of the Western Athletic Conference's Northern Division. CSU meets UTEP in another sigleton tomorrowp northern division member Wyoming is here for one on Wednesday and Southern Colorado State meets UTEP at 2 p.m. both Friday and Saturday.

"This string of games will be a sound test of our skills," Andy remarked after Saturday's twinbill split with Northern Colorado. "We've got a good idea as to our strengths and weaknesses and now we'll have to play accordingly."

ALTHOUGH the veteran baseball strategist would not elaborate it's commonly accepted that hitting heads the "strength" column while second line pitching and defense ain't no where to be found down the line.

The Miners opened Saturday's doubleheader with an 11-0 romp highlighted by outfielder-pitcher Roy Stringer's three-hit shutout. Bob Downing had three hits and four RBI while centerfielder Joe Pennies belted a two-run homer, his second of the year. The latter, a graduate of El Paso's Coronado High School, continues to play the outfield like "The Yankee Clipper" reincarnated.

THE SECOND game was a nightmare for Andy, however. Starter Steve Klein couldn't find the plate often but when he did NC batters lost the ball for him. Llein surrendered seven walks and eight runs in three and two-thirds frames and in the process underlined a Miner weakness. In a Friday loss to Denver University six DU batters who walked eventually made the roundtrip and in Saturday's 16-7 second game setback eight bases on balls were converted into runs. That's 14 runs that shouldn't have been.

Now 8-7 on the season Cohen hopes his squad rebounds from Saturday's second game loss and battles CSU. "We're starting to pick things up," Andy warns, "but the competition is getting stronger too."

Prep Teams Near Dist.

District 2-AAAA baseball teams get one more warm-up tomorrow before the rigorous district schedule begins Friday.

Co-favorites Bel Air and Ysleta play tomorrow with BA hosting 1-AAAA power Austin and Ysleta travelling to Coronado. Elsewhere Andress entertains neighbor Parkland, Fabens plays at Bowie, Jefferson hosts Burges at Hugo Meyer, El Paso High plays at Eastwood and slugging Irvin meets Riverside at Irvin.

Friday 2-4A play gets underway with Bowie at Ysleta, Bel Air at El Paso High and Jefferson at Riverside. Coronado meets Parkland and Ector is at Burges in other tilts.
