

Clemente Sues For $1 Million

United Press International
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 16. — Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates filed a $1 million damage suit against Pittsburgh Weekly Sports, charging he was libeled by a story of a reported fist fight with fellow outfielder Willie Stargell.

Stargell previously sued the Weekly for $750,000.

Clemente's suit, like Stargell's, was filed in federal court.

Both players said the reported fist fight never took place.

An article in the Weekly's Aug. 4 issue said the players exchanged blows in the clubhouse after Clemente made some remarks about the lack of hustling on the team.
