Printer Balks at Four-Letter Word in Story

United Press International

MANKATO, Minn., Nov. 25. — The faculty and students of Mankato State College see nothing wrong with four letter Anglo-Saxon words but their printer does.

After reading an article by Todd Lawson, a senior from Minneapolis and editor of "Paintiff," the college's magazine, the printer, Midwestern Press, refused to print the story.

The article, called "Herbie and I" criticizes religious and racial institutions and uses some four-letter words.

Mankato State's Board of Publication, which is composed of four students and four faculty members urged the printer to publish the issue "with all dispatch."

Friday, Miles Zimmerman, attorney for Midwestern Press, said the issue, including "Herbie and I," would be printed but the magazine would also contain a disclaimer that the article is being printed over the objections of the printer.

Zimmerman's statement expressed the hope that "college authorities will take proper steps to correct the situation that exists. He said this means that "we not be asked again to print this kind of material."

VISITS EL PASO —Jerry Fogel, star of NBC's "The Mothers-in-Law," will be the featured entertainer at the 1968 presentation of Night Lights an annual affair hosted by the Temple Mt. Sinai Mens Club, Nov. 30 at the El Paso Club. Fogel and his family live in Bel Air where Fogel pursues his interest in golf and photography. He attended West Point and is active in the affairs of his class. Chairman of the event is Andy Cohen.

Burton Likes Jeans With Mink Coat

United Press International

LONDON, Nov. 25. — Suppose you're actor Richard Burton and wife Elizabeth Taylor gives you a $7000 mink coat. What kind of toursers would you wear with it?

Paint-stained jeans? Dickie does.

The Daily Mirror today pictured a smiling Burton wearing the coat and jeans and leaning against a shining Rolls Royce.

"When I like something I wear it all the time," Burton said.

'Dear Area 10 College' Sounds Lousy In Song

United Press International

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Nov. 25. — What's in a name?

Students at the Area 10 Community College here apparently believe the answer is important. And they intend to do something about it.

A group of students said they will circulate petitions today at winter quarter registration seeking to change the school's name.

A spokesman said students are asking for a name which would be more appropriate for an academic school. He said the numerical designation lacks the descriptive quality that a school name should have.

The Student Congress member said the petitions are asking the Board of Directors to consider the name change. He said the students have no particular name in mind, but are just seeking to drop the numerical designation.
