MESA — Bobby Winkles should have been an author.

His Arizona State Sun Devils, beaten 4-1 by New Mexico Friday and performing like mild-manner Dr. Jekyll, turned Mr. Hyde yesterday and stomped the Lobos in a doubleheader, 7-2 and 10-3.

The sweep gave the unpredictable Devils, now 21-13 on the season, a 2-1 mark in the Western Athletic Conference's southern division and a share of first place with Arizona. New Mexico fell to 19-9 and 1-2 respectively.

Sophomore hurlers Craig Swan (6-2) and Jim Crawford (5-5) notched the victories, but Sun Devil hitters, batting .253 as a team before this series, made the big splash.

A-State, held to three hits Friday by UNM's Jim Kremenel, broke loose for 22 hits — 12 in the first game (all singles).

Roger Schmuck, the top Devil hitter at .331, again led ASU at the plate, smashing four RBI singles along with a sacrifice fly. Lenny Randle also had four hits for the day, including a triple in the second game.

Jeff Osborn continued his assault on WAC pitching, going 3-for-9 to give him five hits for the series, while Tom Welton added a home run and contributed several sparkling plays afield.

Swan and Crawford, who both went the distance, took opposite routes to their wins.

Swan started strongly, allowing only two hits the first four innings, but struggled later as the Lobos got to him for 10 hits.

"I really didn't feel that good out here," Swan said. "My slider was nothing and my fast ball wasn't moving but I could get it over for strikes. I got a little tired too, but of course it always helps to have a five-run lead."
