Final plans for the first annual Sun Country high school coaches clinic to be held Feb. 25-26 have been completed by the sponsoring El Paso Coaches Assn.

Bowie coach Clay Cox, president of the organization, today announced that Bobby Dobbs, Don Haskins, Andy Cohen, Ross Moore and their coaching staffs at Texas Western College would be the guest lecturers and speakers.

THE CLINIC will open Friday night Feb. 25, at the Sheraton Motor Inn with a buffet dinner. Lectures and demonstrations will be held the next day at Texas Western's Memorial Gymnasium and Magoffin Auditorium.

The morning lectures are planned for Magoffin with films and demonstrations set for the afternoon in the TW field house.

"We are very fortunate in getting the Texas Western coaching staff," announced Cox, "as they have done a wonderful job this year and are busy getting ready for next season in some phases."

DOBBS AND his assistants will give three hours worth of lectures in the morning session and follow with demonstrations and films in the afternoon. The likeable TW football coach guided the Miners to their best football season 1957 with eight wins and three losses—counting the 13-12 Sun Bowl win over Texas Christian University.

Haskins and assistant Moe Iba, have guided the Miners to a No. 6 national rating in both the United Press International and Associated Press polls. Texas Western and Kentucky are the last two undefeated college teams in the country.

COHEN WILL speak to baseball coaches and Moore track coaches in the morning and then take part in the afternoon seminar.

"We have invited coaches from all over West Texas and Southern New Mexico and are hopeful of a good attendance," added Cox. "We would very much like to make this an annual affair if things work out as we believe they will this year."

Some 300 local coaches are expected to be in attendance with perhaps as many as 500-600 expected total.

The clinic was several weeks in the planning and the final date was settled on so as to conflict with the track season as little as possible.
