agent explained that it was simply "because she is the first lady of the United States."
President Johnson and his daughter, Luci, 18, departed in a blue and white limousine after a two-day trip to the center. The Johnsons' daughter, Luci, 22, stayed on with her mother until this afternoon when they will depart for Texas to enjoy the President's birthday.

When Lady Bird, in a black coat and dark suit, was seated, she asked if it was the center, she asked her arms in the air and said: "Si, Viva Mexico."

MEXICO'S diplomatic corps will long remember Mrs. Johnson's visit to the center. She was the first American diplomat to visit the center, and she was the first American woman to visit the center.

Even Sen. Dan Rostenkowski, who was in the center, said the party was to be officially closed.

The President's wife, a self-proclaimed housewife, was seen in the center, she was seen in the center, she was seen in the center.

Marines Fight, Win Hard Battle

Millions Will See El Paso Movie

time sports foundation — a nonprofit professional organization, sponsored by sporting goods manufacturers.

THE FOUNDATION paid for the black and white filming of "The El Paso Story" and its distribution.

TO begin with the film will be shown in El Paso before a prominent audience, April 25.

COPIES of it will be shipped to every State's Department of Education and to the nation's educational television stations.

THE movie-makers said they were delighted with the federal program in El Paso, where 21 of the city's 41 elementary and secondary schools are qualifying for the government's financial aid.

IN one sequence, the film shows a bowling alley leased by the available federal funds, to provide a competitive outlet for children from low-income families.

ANOTHER scene shows the results of a leased YMCA swimming pool in the evening hours, to offset the handicap of El Paso schools that have no pools for their students.

FOUR more scenes with lights set up and evening hours extended, the movie-makers say, are shown in the first film of its kind.

EL PASO is the first city in Texas which put the new federal program into operation.

BLACKBURN disputed White House claims business is reducing its new plant and machinery spending in response to Johnson's request for "voluntary" cuts.

HE said in a news conference that a McGraw-Hill survey reported that the steel industry planned to spend $1.5 billion more than it had in 1965.

THE PRESIDENT asked them, but look at the statistics, Blackburn said. He contended, however, the steel industry's spending would not prevent inflation.

BLACKBURN said that Johnson's request for "voluntary" cuts was a "silly" idea.
