

Charleston, Denver Win in Association

Manager Andy Cohen hasn't gotten around to feeding his crew tranquilizer pills yet, but the way the Denver Bears have been playing, it might not be a bad idea.

The American Assn's second place team has been involved in one-run or extra-inning affairs the last five games, winning only two.

The Bears pulled one out Tuesday night against Louisville, winning 5-4 with three runs in the last of the ninth. That kept them one game behind front-running Charleston, a 7-5 winner over Omaha in 10 innings. Defending champion Wichita moved within a half-game of third place Minneapolis, downing the Millers 5-2. Indianapolis whipped St. Paul by the same score.
