

Dr. Francis Brady of Elmira College speaks to the All Sports banquet Monday. Seated at the dais from left, are Ed Marinaro, Pete Richert.

Dick McAlliff, Woody Erdman, Gary Collins, Marty Glickman, Earl Weaver, All Sports president Ed Neitsch (behind Weaver), Lou Palmarovitz of All Sports, Whitey Ford, Joe Lapchick, Lou Gorman, of the Kansas City Royal organization, Lou Pinella.

Ithaca College grid coach Jim Butterfield and Lou Pinella.

All banquet pictures by S-G photographer Rich Konz

Auerbach Wows Sellout Crowd of 708 at Sports Fete

Elmira's Earl Weaver, honored guest at All-Sports Banquet, is presented carved baseball and bat by Jack Dillbert, Elmira College chef.

Kranepool, Swoboda Unhappy

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Kranepool and Ron Swoboda are reported to be a couple of unhappy New York Mets because they were offered only $4,000 increases to their $23,000 salaries last year.

"When they were being," Kranepool was quoted by Marty Allen in Monday's New York Post. "They didn't want to pay me because I was part of a team that was finishing last. Now that we won, they said I didn't contribute that much."

"Everybody you hear about has their salary doubled. I don't think we contributed that little to this club."

Kranepool said he had one question with Joe McDonald, director of minor league operations, and one with Bob Scheffing, the new general manager.

"McDonald spent the whole time telling me I couldn't run. I couldn't throw, I couldn't do this, I couldn't do that," said Kranepool. "He's used to dealing with minor leaguers. He thinks he can scare you into signing."

Master of Ceremonies Marty Glickman signs an autograph for an admirer.

By MARK FLEISHER

Red Auerbach was a late arrival Monday night at the All Sports testimonial for Earl Weaver at Elmira College, but the sometime acid-tongued vice president and general manager of the Boston Celtics proved to be a show-stopper of the highest order.

Auerbach and Dick Lynch, the former New York Giants All-Pro, were delayed by travel problems in New York City, and the witty cage genius was admittedly a bit shaken from what he called a "rough flight." Once he began his talk, he had the sellout crowd of 708 roaring with laughter at his anecdotes.

He began his talk recalling incidents that took place when he led teams of National Basketball Association stars on the tours of Europe and the Far East.

He told of the time when he had two Polish basketball officials pose as secret policemen to arrest Tom Heinsohn, the former Celtic star and now their coach.

"Tommy was so mad when he found out it was a phony, he swore he'd get me if it took but as far as the NBA is concerned, the salaries are surreal. Think that's funny—he almost had me shot in Egypt."

Although Auerbach continued in a humorous vein, he did bring up a serious point that he learned in his dealings in foreign lands, some of them unfriendly to the United States.

After recalling a rather heated verbal run-in with Yugoslavian cage officials, Auerbach said he found that the best policy was "be your own man."

And for Auerbach, that's quite a fellow to handle.

He just let the State Department handle the protocol and the players (Bob Cousy, Bob Pettit, Bill Russell among them) concentrated on basketball and representing their athletes.

There were poor hotel conditions, hostile crowds (they whistled instead of booed), shady referees and the like, he noted, "but this made us play a little bit better."

Introduced by outgoing All Sports president, Lou Palmarovitz, Glickman said, "You know, he further I got from Syracuse All-American foot-by Lou Gorman, the Royals' ball and Olympic track star, proved to be an outstanding manager, the greater the challenge."

Of course, the reason for the banter was Earl Weaver. The Baltimore Orioles' certain that Earl Weaver will manager, the only Elmira rank as one of the game's resident to lead a team to the "best managers," Gorman said.

Next at the podium was the aggressive Detroit Tiger in star who went on to become the winningest New York winter banquet — a fan-filled Yankee pitcher of all time, nostalgic evening for as the Whitey Ford, told of his ex-properly audience.

Perhaps his funniest bit of humor concerned Bill Russell, who was guarding a 6-3 simulated the cold bats the of the 1969 season because of a Bulls carried into the World Series against the New York Orioles were the team to beat in the upcoming season.

"I told Russ that if this guy would break his (Russell's) Weaver, responding to a speed, power, fielding and pitching, standing, kept laughing."

Neitsch presented plaques to the 22 years in area products Bill Collins, baseball, this is my greatest Yankee farmhand from Watkins Glen, Tom McMillen, straight times and then the kid baseball signed "Best Wishes, Elmira's Chuck Derr, the two takes three steps back, heaven's flag," by an Elmira College time Pass, Punt and Kick the ball like a baseball and I could Weaver played, "Crawford, champion. Neitsch also read scream at Russell because the Crawford, of course, was the umpire who tossed Weaver out Derr and from Pennsylvania the Bird boss argued a hit-by-pitch call.

Ed Neitsch, new All Sports president, presented Weaver with a plaque and the Orioles field boss responded with "Wall Till This Year."

Glickman also read a telegram of congratulations from Andy Cohen, Weaver's manager at Denver and New Orleans, and a former Elmira Pioneer manager.

All of the speakers who took their turn at the microphone entertained the audience with a smattering of comic incidents, some perhaps contrived and others factual.

Pete Richert, the Orange lefty reliever, said last season was keep trading with Cleveland most enjoyable.

"Earl was in the dugout and I was in the bullpen, so we didn't get to talk much."

Richert was followed by Lou Pinella, the American League Rookie of the Year in 1966, who recalled his Pioneer days in 1968 under Weaver.

Pinella, who admitted having a lot to learn in those days, said Weaver often fixed him and that season would have been more enjoyable if not for the incidents.

Touching on the Pioneer's new working agreement with the Royals, Pinella lauded the KC organization and said he believed it would prove to be a fine relationship.

These thoughts were echoed by Al Mallette, Star-Gazette sports editor, right, presents the Star-Gazette Co-Athlete of the Decade award to Bill Tryon, while Mrs. Marie Fleming receives a similar award from Marty Harrigan in memory of her son, Ernie Davis.

Other Sports Banquet stories, pictures on Page 15.

directed at Gary Collins, the joshy days in the league Browns' all-star receiver, who when he played with Birmingham-related a humorous story about him.

John Harlick, the basketball Ford commented that his great who came to Cleveland debut in the big leagues came at a rookie receiver, before against Ted Williams in a game the Yankees were being Joe Lapchick, the former St. Louis' John's and New York Knick, "I walked him on four pitches and then Ted Droppo lined into a double play and I came out of it alive."

Believing a day with his ex-battermate Yogi Berra, Ford said, "One game against the White Sox, I loaded the bases on three pitches and then Ted Kluszewski cleared them with a double. So Stengel comes out to the mound and says, 'Yogi, does Ford have anything to say?' Yogi replied, 'How should I know, I haven't caught anything yet!'"

That was the All Sports mid-winter banquet — a fan-filled, nostalgic evening for as the Whitey Ford, told of his ex-properly audience.

Al Mallette, Star-Gazette sports editor, right, presents the Star-Gazette Co-Athlete of the Decade award to Bill Tryon, while Mrs. Marie Fleming receives a similar award from Marty Harrigan in memory of her son, Ernie Davis.

SCOREBOARD

NBA				ABA
East	W	L	Pct.	East	W	L	Pct.
New York	41	26	.610	Indiana	35	19	.646
Milwaukee	39	18	.684	Kentucky	29	22	.568
Baltimore	35	22	.614	Carolina	23	25	.479
Philadelphia	29	27	.519	New York	23	21	.524
Cincinnati	26	32	.448	Pittsburgh	11	36	.230
Boston	22	40	.354	Miami	14	36	.280
Detroit	21	37	.362	West
				New Orleans	28	20	.583
				Denver	25	21	.549
				Dallas	23	25	.479
				San Antonio	23	27	.459
				Los Angeles	23	28	.449
				Monday's Results
				Denver 18, Los Angeles 119
				New Orleans 111, Washington 108
				Today's Games
				Atlanta 125, Detroit 121
				Today's Games
				Chicago vs. Boston at Ball.
				Seattle at Ball.
				Los Angeles vs. Cincy at Cleveland
				San Francisco at New York
				Philas at Phoenix
				AHL
				East
				Montreal	29	8	.786
				Penn 27, Columbia 32
				Jackmanville 118, Iona 35
				Spring	22	19	.538
				Quebec	18	26	.409
				Buffalo	18	26	.409
				West
				St. Louis	21	16	.568
				Philadelphia	17	17	.500
				Baltimore	17	17	.500
				Rochester	12	23	.344
				Cleveland	9	26	.256
				Monday's Games
				No games scheduled.
				Today's Games
				No games scheduled.

Earl Weaver gets a kiss and brush off from Sue Stockwell, an Elmira College student from Metuchen, N.J.

Dick Lynch, left, and Red Auerbach talk to part of the All Sports banquet crowd.