SAINTS-MILLERS OLD-TIMERS GAME SCHEDULED JULY 16 AT METROPOLITAN STADIUM

Two of the most popular second basemen in the annals of Twin Cities professional baseball, Andy Cohen and Ollie Bejma, will be in the starting lineups when the second-annual Saints-Millers Old-Timers Game is played at Metropolitan Stadium, Tuesday, July 16.

Cohen, a Minneapolis Miller mainstay for seven seasons, now resides in his native El Paso, Texas, where he serves as baseball coach at the University of Texas at El Paso in the spring, and as a coach for the El Paso Sun Kings of the Texas League during the summer months. Year round, Andy is a sales representative for a brewing company.

Bejama, sparkplug of St. Paul's 1938 American Association championships and the league's 'Most Valuable Player' that season, is now employed as a driver examiner for the State of Indiana in South Bend. Ollie batted .326 for the Saints in '38, and after playing for the Chicago White Sox in 1939, re-joined the St. Paul club in 1940, when he batted .297, and 1941, when he posted a .300 figure.

Cohen, a Miller from 1932 to '39, saw major league service with the New York Giants in 1926, '28 and '29. His best season with the Millers was 1937, when he batted .320.

Besides the White Sox, Bejma was also a major leaguer with the old St. Louis Browns from 1934 through 1936.

Also accepting bids to be among the 30 or so players who'll participate in the contest are 1945-46 Saint pitcher Gene Kelly, now recreation director for the city of Bloomington, and 1943 Miller pitcher-outfielder Lefty Johnson, currently employed as a bartender at the Gayety Annex Bar in the Mill City.

Previously in the fold were Boston Red Sox manager Dick Williams a 1954 Saint, and Boston coach Eddie Popowski, last Miller manager in 1960, who'll serve as playing manager of the squads.

The rebirth of the Millers and Saints will take place at 6:30 p.m. July 16, prior to the Twins-Red Sox game slated here that evening. A one-hour or 3-inning game, last year's event was won by the ex-Saints, 3-1.
