Coliseum Rink Gets First Sprinkling for Dedication

Wednesday it looked like there might be a hockey match at the Fargo Coliseum soon.

Flooding of the rink was started. It will be completed today.

Wednesday night the Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League and their country cousins, the Memphis South Stars of the Central Hockey League, will square off in the first match in the new arena.

Finishing touches on the new indoor skating arena remain to put it in shape for Sunday's grand opening and dedication.

There has been some delay in the seating installation. But the remainder of the seats which will be erected on the east and west sides of the rink will arrive some time today.

It didn't appear a week ago that the arena would be ready for the exhibition match between the North Stars and their farm team, the South Stars. But the progress has been steady the last week, and little will remain to be finished after the dedication Sunday.

The Minnesotans and the Memphians launched their three-game exhibition tour of the Upper Midwest at Bemidji, Minn., last night. They are scheduled at Hibbing, Minn., Sunday and in Fargo Wednesday. The North Stars play the Chicago Black Hawks Friday and the Detroit Red Wings on Oct. 4 at Duluth.

Pete Mikkelsen, former Fargo-Moorhead pitcher, a reliever with the New York Yankees, was a standout with the Oilers, having a 16-4 record and allowing only 1.9 runs per game.

Dave Pavlisec, a former Mayville State student, was an outfielder on the Tulsa club.

The Texas League championship was won by the El Paso Sun Kings, managed by Chuck Tanner, a former Eau Claire star in the Northern League. Andy Cohen, who managed the Eau Claire club, was a coach on the El Paso staff.

John Olerud, a native Fargoan, was a catcher with El Paso until promoted to the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League.
