

UA Faces Miners In Not-So-Minor Series

Arizona's baseball team will depart for El Paso tomorrow morning — and coach Frank Sancet hopes to bring 'em back alive.

The Wildcats, in deep trouble in the WAC Southern Division championship race, will open a critical three-game series with Texas-El Paso tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Dudley Field. The Cats will conclude their UTEP tour with a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader Saturday.

Anything less than a three-game sweep at UTEP could mean premature death for Arizona in the Southern Division. UA has a 3-3 record and can't afford to fall any farther behind Arizona State (5-1).

UA right-hander Leon Hooten (9-1) has been nominated to open against Miner lefty Harry Milner (4-5) in tomorrow's curtain-raiser. The Wildcats will follow with lefty Rich Hinton (10-1) and righthander Fred Burns (4-2) in the twinbill. UTEP will counter with two more southpaws, Marc Bombard (5-3) and Lynn Hunt (2-4).

Coach Andy Cohen, the old pro, has been surprised by his UTEP club. Cohen expected to have good pitching and light hitting this season.

He was wrong. Instead, the Miners have had solid hitting and unpredictable pitching. Primary pitching disappointment is Hunt, who had excellent sophomore and junior seasons. Bombard and Milner, dependable if not overpowering, both beat New Mexico.

Arizona, ranked seventh in the country, has a 28-5 over-all record, as compared with the Miners' 13-16. UTEP, billed as The Spoiler in the Southern Division, is 2-4 in conference, holding wins over New Mexico. UA had to scrap to take two out of three from New Mexico last weekend.

The entire UTEP series will be piped back to Tucson by KCUR-radio (1290), with Mac Marshall doing the play-by-play.
