That brought up Mike Roarke, who kept the flame alive with a single past short.

Then came a battle of wits. Manager Ben Geraghty ordered up Red Murff to hit against southpaw Roy Tinney, but Boss Andy Cohen of the visitors countered by ordering in George Spencer, reliable reliever. Then Geraghty changed his mind and sent in Milton Robert "Poochie" Hartsfield to pinch hit. And "Poochie" did just that, sending a long line drive to deep right which fell for a clean hit, Malkmus scoring and Roarke being waved around from first. But Chico Garcia made a fine relay, nailing Roarke by a couple of feet at the plate sending the game into extra innings. Hartsfield got a double on his blow.

In the top of the 10th, with two away, Ted Beard who had scored both Indianapolis runs, singled. Garcia followed with another single. Paine got Delsing out, on a bounder to Malkmus.

Joe Koppe walked to start the 10th. Hazle bunted neatly in front of the plate, with no chance at a forceout at second and Harry Hanebrink slammed his winning hit to right, his second single of the night, to break it up.

Indianapolis had scored in the first on two walks, Garcia's single and a forceout.

Beard Homers

The only other hit the Indians got for eight innings was Ted Beard's homer in the third, to make it 2 to 0. Rehm got his bearing and but for the injury to his pitching arm, might have gone all the way. Bob Ross relieved and allowed but one hit, a single in the ninth.

Holton's homer was all Wichita could do off Tinney until the ninth. The blow came in the fifth, down the left field line. The Braves were out-hitting the Indians, but Tinney fanned eight.
