

Downpour of Losses Fails To Dampen Cohen's Spirits

IT WOULD TAKE mathematicians endless hours to compute the number of miles Andy Cohen has churned out in his countless trips to the pit-

"I've been through quite a bit here. I've taken some pretty bad beatings. Every once in a while Syd (Cohen's devoted brother) will come up to me in a really tough game and just

As instructors Andy and Syd are non-pareil. Perhaps it is just the character of today's

"My plans now are to return next year," Andy will confidently state. "But the university has been awfully good to me and I'll do relief pitcher who could strike everybody out. But Danny says the difficult thing is trying to get that guy to put down his beer and come out of the stands to play."
