Indians To Help Baseball Clinic

Several Indianapolis players will help instruct youngsters taking part in the Sun-Tattler baseball clinic March 30.

Although the Indians have an exhibition contest slated for West Palm Beach with Kansas City B team on the date, Andy Cohen, Indianapolis manager, promised to keep several top players here for the clinic.

The Indians will join White Sox farm instructors in giving directions to the more than 250 young ball players expected to turn out.

Two age groups, 12 years old and over and 12 and under, will receive pointers in fielding, hitting, throwing, and batting.

The instructors and players giving the clinic will select nine man all-star teams in each class.

All-star players will receive miniature gold baseballs from the Sun-Tattler.

Frank Parenti, White Sox farm instructor, will direct the clinic. He will be assisted by Hugh Mulcahy, Dowdy field director; and managers of three White Sox farm clubs.

The clinic will start at Dowdy field at 3 p. m. No advance registration is needed.
