Manager Calls Hollywood Tops

There is no finer spring training set-up in the country than Hollywood offers, Andy Cohen, manager of the Indianapolis Indians said yesterday at the monthly coffee club meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Cohen has been in organized baseball since 1925 when he joined the Texas league. He played in the major leagues as a second baseman for the New York Giants.

Also attending the meeting at Davis cafeteria, 1828 Harrison St., were Glen Miller, director of the parent Chicago White Sox farm club organization, and Owen (Donie) Bush, Indianapolis president.

"Glen Miller, I'm sure, wouldn't ever think of training any other place with his five clubs," Cohen said. "I hope I can bring my family down here next year," he said.

There are 140 minor league baseball players training at the White Sox farm at Dowdy field.

Cohen, who played when John McGraw was manager, related some humorous tales about the McGraw-Giants days.

True Patriot

"One day we were playing the Braves in Boston, which is a predominantly Irish town," Cohen said. "Pitcher Freddie Fitzsimmons was scheduled to bat in a tight spot with two men on in a late inning.

"So McGraw sends me in to bat. When the loud speaker blasts out, 'Cohen now batting for Fitzsimmons', a big husky fella in the stands bellows, 'and Flanagan now leaving the park!'"

Cohen, a jovial man with a quick smile, also spoke of another incident with McGraw. He tried to alibi to the rough New York manager when he missed a fly ball.

"Those winds are pretty tricky today, I told him when I came back into the dugout," Cohen said. "He looked me straight in the eye and answered, 'son, those winds aren't tricky winds, they're trade winds, and if you don't perk up you'll be playing winds for Minneapolis before the year's over.'"

Ted Sorin, chairman of the chamber activities committee, concluded the coffee club meeting by presenting Fiesta Tropicales awards.

Indians End Stay Saturday In Dowdy Tilt With Toronto

South Broward baseball fans will get their last chance of the season Saturday to see Indianapolis, Triple A American association champs, play at Dowdy field.

The Indians will end a month-long spring stand here with a 2 p.m. contest against Toronto of the International league.

Already some of the Indians have ended spring work and have started back to Indianapolis to await the season opener Tuesday against Minneapolis.

Owen (Donie) Bush, Indianapolis president, and Manager Andy Cohen, expressed satisfaction at their Hollywood stay and said they hope to bring the Indians back next season.

Although Indianapolis will pull out, fans will still have four White Sox farm teams to watch at Dowdy field.

Colorado Springs of the Class A Western league will battle Buffalo here tomorrow at 2 p.m.

with several intra-camp games and contests with the University of Miami on the schedule.

Indianapolis, which won two thirds of its Florida exhibition contests, will make a strong fight in the American association race, Cohen said.

He wouldn't make a firm prediction until seeing the other clubs in the league. He is a first year league manager.

Physical Education Classes Use Pool

South Broward High Drive Starts To Teach Every Student To Swim

South Broward High school physical education classes yesterday opened a program to teach every student to swim.

The classes started as a regular part of the high school physical education course, Principal Harold Phares said.

Yesterday's classes marked the official opening of the long-awaited high school pool.

The $38,000 pool was built after a long community drive sparked by the South Broward Swimming Pool association. John Calvin, school board member, and Sherwood Spencer led the drive.

1958 Target

"By June, 1958 every student here will know how to swim," Phares said.

Use of the pool will be restricted to gym classes and the Bulldog swim teams until the 1956-57 school session ends in June.

The pool will not be open Saturdays and Sundays.

School physical education instructors will teach the regular classes and Miss Hilliard Cameron and Hal Boylan will direct the swimming teams.

Lights will be installed this week to enable night swim meets, Phares said. Installation of a diving board is awaiting a shipment of parts, he said.
