No Games Here Before Tribe's Season Opener

By LESTER KOELLING

The first game at Victory Field this year will be the Indianapolis Indians' season opener against Minneapolis on Tuesday, April 16.

In other years, major league clubs have played preseason exhibitions here and occasionally the Indians have completed their spring card in Victory Field exhibitions. But this year the Indians will wind up their exhibition schedule at Hollywood, Fla., on April 13 and arrive in Indianapolis the next day to await the season opener.

A schedule of 19 exhibition games has been completed for the Indians, who will open their spring training at Hollywood March 12. The Indians will share the one diamond at Hollywood with four other clubs in the Chicago White Sox system—Colorado Springs, Tri-Cities (Davenport-Rock Island-Moline), Dubuque and Duluth-Superior. However, the latter three clubs will not report until shortly before the Tribe departs.

Most of the Tribe's exhibition games will be against International League clubs—Buffalo, Miami and Toronto. No games are booked against American Association rivals whose training quarters are too far removed from the Indianapolis base at Hollywood.

More than 30 players will report to Manager Andy Cohen, who is expected to make his first appearance here, as team manager, early in February. Cohen currently is managing the Chesterfield club which is in first place in the Panama League. The season ends February 5. The Tribe's exhibition schedule follows:
